Delegate Anthony Dimond of Alaska had reported receiving "slight circumstantial evidence" of Japanese activity in the Pribilof Islands, the world's richest sealing grounds.

A move by the Japs into the Pribilofs, reported here for some time, not only would bring the enemy much closer to the Alaskan mainland but would put them in a strategic position for a flanking attack on Dutch Harbor.

BLACK DRAGON SOCIETY IN U. S.

Jap Secret Group Recruited Members Here, Arrest of Filipino Reveals.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Aug. 1 — The presence in the United States of a band recruited by Japan's Black Dragon society to aid a possible invasion has been disclosed by the FBI with the announcement of the arrest of an alleged organizer for the group, which claims 100,000 members.

The prisoner, Mimo De Guzman, 42, a Filipino, of Washington, D. C. was described by the FBI as an active figure in a drive to form a fifth column among Negroes in America.

P. E. Foxworth, assistant FBI director, said yesterday in telling of the Filipino's arrest, that one of the stated purposes of the group was to assist the Japanese in an invasion of the United States.

Foxworth said DeGuzman served in the U. S. navy from 1918 to 1930, has been dishonorably discharged from the coast guard, used some 19 false names, had a long criminal record and was wanted in Washington for violating the postal laws.

He was arrested Thursday evening and charged with failing to return his draft questionnaire.

Foxworth said De Guzman informed his recruits that "The Japanese will supply you with

NEW DRAFT RULES GOING INTO EFFECT

Regulations Put Into Operation Rapidly As Possible.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1—New selective service regulations designed to protect established family relationships are being put into effect as rapidly as possible, national headquarters said today.

However, men classified before the new policy was announced July 13 as available for military service despite their family status still are being inducted, officials said and this situation may continue in many communities during a temporary change over period.

Quotas must be met, they said, even if it means inducting men who might have been placed in a deferred status under the new regulations, but under previous policy were classified as available for military service.

The new regulations, applying to registrants classified after they were announced, will be extended to men with families previously classified as subject to induction as rapidly as the local boards can reconsider the individuals cases.

The new regulations set up these seven groups in the order in which local boards should call them: (1) single men, with no dependents; (2) single men, with dependents, not contributing to

NEW RATIONING SETUP STARTED IN MARION CO.

Executive Secretary and Four Clerks Start Work; All Boards To Be Retained.

The Marion county rationing board, functioning under the federal office of price administration, with a paid executive secretary and four paid clerks, began functioning today at 193 East Center street.

Under the new setup the rationing board will take over the work of County Coordinator John P. Probst of Marion.

C. C. Holliday of LaRue, executive secretary under the new setup and a member of the LaRue rationing board since its inception last January, returned last night from attending an OPA school of instruction in Columbus and this morning outlined the plan of the new setup.

Mr. Holliday said he would ask the rationing boards at LaRue, Caledonia, Prospect, Waldo, Morral, Agosta and Green Camp to continue functioning in dispensing sugar certificates and taking applications for automobile tires and tubes, and that it was possible that the Marion city tire rationing board also would be asked to continue to function. The Marion city and township rationing has been handled at the East Center street address for some time.

To Check Applications

It is Mr. Holliday's plan, he said this morning, to go over carefully the tire applications from the city and county and to call a meeting of the county board once a week to consider his recommendations and issue certificates. Edgar W. Barnhart of 503 Vernon Heights boulevard is chairman of the board.

In Mr. Holliday's view, that to require residents of Marion county rural areas drive into Marion for sugar certificates or to make application for tires and tubes would defeat the entire tire rationing program and would work considerable hardship on those who live in the far corners of the county.

The OPA office in Columbus yesterday gave Mr. Holliday virtually a free hand in setting up the county program and was in accord with his ideas of asking county boards to continue functioning, he said this morning.

Clerks Listed

The four clerks who, with Mr. Holliday, are the only paid members of the rationing staff, are Mrs. Nora Fetter and Miss Gladys Pfleiderer who have been employed at the sugar rationing center, Mrs. Clarence Flach and Mrs. Roberta Kraatz. A fifth clerk probably will be employed before the organization set-up is complete, the executive secretary said.

The federal government will furnish equipment and supplies for the office, which at present is furnished entirely with borrowed equipment.

Yesterday the office received two steel file cabinets and this morning a bill of lading was received for two decks and several typewriter tables.

Mr. Holliday said he learned yesterday in Columbus that the Marion county board is considered among the most important in the state due to the large volume of defense work being done here.

Praises Coordinator

In taking over his duties Mr. Holliday expressed his appreciation to Mr. Probst for the efficient way in which he set up the rationing program in his capacity as county coordinator.

"Any one who is not familiar with the mass of detail necessary to get the rationing program going and to keep it going, can not appreciate the time and the personal expenditure of Mr. Probst in his job as coordinator," he said.

Supplying Drinking Water to War Plant Workers Is No Small Task

100 Boys, Three Trucks and Sterilizing Equipment Used in Daily Operations.

It takes a crew of approximately 100 water boys, three trucks, dozens of big milk cans, sterilizing equipment and a crew of men workers to keep the thousands of Scioto Ordnance Plant workers supplied with fresh drinking water.

The drinking water problem is one of the many that outsiders might not think of in connection with a big construction project but which officials of the plant gave careful attention.

The water supply problem began when tests made on existing wells throughout the ordnance plant area showed many of them were not up to state standards for safe drinking.

Supplied from Well

The supply now comes from a big 80-foot well and the water, thoroughly cooled by ice, is rushed to distribution points throughout the area. Water containers are located throughout the various buildings and the water boys look after the workers in the field.

Hunkin - Conkey Construction Co officials pointed out that every precaution is taken to provide the workers with water that is pure and fresh.

The milk cans in which the water is hauled get a thorough cleansing and steam sterilizing treatment between each trip. The water is ice cold when it leaves the distribution center, and is kept shaded from the sun while it is being rushed to the water boys and the office buildings. After a waterboy makes the rounds of his workers, he empties his container and takes on a supply of fresh, cool water before starting out again.

All Carry Equipment

The waterboys carry a supply of paper cups, and every time a worker wants a drink he gets a fresh cup. The boys also carry salt tablets which are furnished to workers. Use of the tablets is recommended especially during hot weather when perspiration not only drains the body of liquids but salts as well, sometimes producing faintness and dizziness. The salt tablets, the officials point out, help offset this loss.

Two big trucks and a pick-up truck are in almost constant use on each shift, hauling water all over the plant area where work is under way.

7,400 Gallons Daily

The well that supplies all of this water yields 7,400 gallons on an average day.

Water was hauled from the Marion Water Co. lines to the ordnance plant until the well on the site was developed. The Marion Water Co again will be used to supply drinking water on the area when connections with the company's lines are completed.

Workers also are permitted to make use of any of the existing wells that have been inspected and found safe. Those found unsafe are marked plainly with large, red signs.

Atlantic Ship Losses Now Reach 406 Mark

By The Associated Press

The Associated Press count of announced allied and neutral ship losses in the western Atlantic since Dec. 7 was 406 today, with yesterday's navy announcement of the sinking of a Panamanian vessel and disclosure of Brazil's fifth ship loss of the war.

Sinkings announced in July totaled 79.

In a message to the Argentine naval ministry, that country's tanker Tacuto said it had rescued 17 survivors of the Brazilian freighter Barbacena (4,772 tons) off the northern coast of Brazil. The message said nothing of missing crewmen.

GERMANS DRIVE DEEPER INTO CAUCASUS AREA

Russians Still Maintain Stiff Resistance To Nazis in Stalingrad Sector.

By The Associated Press

Britain's campaign to secure Germany by day hit the big war foundries center of Duesseldorf in the heart of the Rhineland before dawn today, while in Russia the Germans gained ever deeper into the Caucasus.

A bulletin from Nazi field headquarters reported that German troops had captured the Caucasian rail junction of Salsk, 109 miles southeast of Rostov, completing a second cut in the line from the great southern Caucasus oil fields to Stalingrad.

In the Don river bend northwest of Stalingrad the German command reported that "ever relentless, violent battle" was raging and indicated that the Russians were sending up huge reinforcements.

"Air units attacked day and night unloading troops from trains as well as transports by train, roads and waterways," the German communique said.

A British communique said a "very strong force" of RAF bombers—presumably at least 600 strong—pounded Duesseldorf for an hour with highly successful results. The magnitude of the raid was indicated by the fact that 31 planes failed to return.

Nine-Day Battle Rages

On the Soviet front, bitter all-night fighting raged in three main sectors — around Kletskaya, 80 miles northwest of Stalingrad, scene of the bloody nine-day-old battle of the Don river bend, at Tsimlyansk, 120 miles southwest of Stalingrad; and below Batalsk in the Caucasus.

Front-line dispatches said Cossack calvarymen were lashing savagely at the Germans while Nazi and Red army tanks crushed hundreds of acres of wheat and flames scarred the countryside in the widening battle for Caucasian oil, railways and seaports.

Russian marines and shore batteries were reported in action southwest of Batalsk, 15 miles below Rostov, indicating that the Germans were encroaching on the southern beaches of the gulf of Taganrog.

"South and southeast of Batalsk, our troops engaged in heavy fighting against the enemy's motorized infantry and tanks," a midday Soviet communique reported.

EIGHT MEN KILLED BY LIGHTNING BOLTS

Six-Year-Old Boy Drowns As Storm Hits Philadelphia.

By The Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 1—Eight men were killed by lightning, a six-year-old boy drowned and transportation systems were disrupted temporarily yesterday when a shattering electrical storm struck the metropolitan Philadelphia area.

A single bolt killed four gardeners on the estate of Alfred I. DuPont at Rockland, Del., as they huddled under a marble arch. They were identified as Edward O'Connell, 60, Louis Durso, 38, Frank Lepore, 47, and John Dougherty, 49. A fifth man was injured.

Three men, James Gilmore Jr., 20, William Diluilo, 44, and Robert Kyle, 20, all employes of the Sharpe and Dohme chemical laboratories at Glenolden, were killed when lightning struck a transformer.

William M. Kempton, 22, lifeguard at the Tully-Secane county club, was the eighth lightning victim.

Thomas Neville, son of Lieut. Col. F. N. Neville of the quartermaster corps here, went wading in a gully and flood waters swept him into a storm sewer. His body was not recovered immediately.

All service on the Broad street subway was halted for a time and the force of the storm kept trolly and motor transportation at a standstill.

Appearing before two senate committees in Washington in connection with conversion of his west coast shipyards to production of giant cargo planes, Henry J. Kaiser declared he had from "50 to 60" engineers working on the engineering features of flying boat construction.

JAPS EXTEND PACIFIC GRIP

New Area Taken Over Provides Air Base Sites on Solomon Islands.

By The Associated Press

GENERAL MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Australia, Aug. 1 — The Japanese have extended their hold on the Solomon islands east of New Guinea by establishing themselves on Guadalcanal island, a suitable site for air bases, General MacArthur's headquarters reported today.

The disclosure was made in a communique relating that Japanese installations at Kukum on the north shore of the island were attacked yesterday by allied planes which also damaged a large enemy cargo ship offshore.

Other bombers operating far to the northwest attacked and "probably hit" a Japanese cruiser in the Banda sea south of Amboina in the Dutch East Indies, the bulletin said.

The Japanese began moving into Guadalcanal about six weeks ago, apparently with the intention of establishing air bases there, a spokesman said. The island is one of the southernmost of the group, which extends in a chain for about 500 miles to the southeast of New Britain. Bougainville, northernmost of the group, was occupied by the enemy some time ago.

On the Papuan peninsula of New Guinea, where allied and Japanese patrols have clashed recently within 60 miles of Port Moresby, advance allied base, the land situation was described as "static," but allied bombers raided the Japanese-occupied village of Buna in the Gona Mission area and started two large fires.

BAN ON RECORDINGS IS EFFECTIVE TODAY

Petrillo Rejects Davis Appeal for Suspension of Order.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Aug. 1—James Caesar Petrillo's ban on the making of musical recordings and transcriptions for public use went into effect today but, thanks to expanded stocks, the public won't feel it until today's songs start grating on the ears.

Petrillo, president of the American Federation of Musicians (AFL), advised Elmer Davis, director of war information, last night that the order would be carried out.

Davis had appealed to Petrillo to cancel the ban as a "patriotic duty," pointing out the ionic effect of music on public morale.

But Petrillo wrote Davis:

"I cannot grant your request. x x x you have been absolutely misinformed throughout."

There were indications that official action to fight the order was near. Attorney General Biddle authorized a suit to seek an injunction against enforcement of the order some time ago, and the New York Times said the suit would be filed in Chicago either today or Monday.

BOMBERS HIT NAZI FACTORIES IN DUSSELDORF

31 Planes Fail To Return After Another Heavy Raid on Rhineland.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Aug. 1—The RAF blasted and set fire to the Rhineland industrial city of Duesseldorf with 150 (words) bombs, hundreds of thousands of incendiaries and a great weight of other bombs of all sizes for 50 minutes last night in "probably the most concentrated attack the bomber command has yet made," the air ministry announced today.

Reconnaissance planes returning to the devastated German city today confirmed that many fires still were burning at 11 a. m., said the ministry's news service bulletin on the gigantic assault.

The number of planes involved was not disclosed, but that it was tremendous was indicated by the announcement that "a great number of Lancasters (4-motored bombers) as well as a great force of all other types of heavy and medium bombers" participated.

They hurled bombs on the target city "in a ceaseless rain," said the ministry's account.

Thirty-one of them failed to return from this 47th assault on the objective more than 300 miles from the nearest points in Britain.

"Very good weather, bright moonlight and easy recognition of the target made possible such rapid attack and consequent saturation of defenses," the bulletin stated.

Defense Confused

"Though Duesseldorf is an arsenal of great importance to the enemy's armed forces, and therefore has all the defenses that one would expect, the guns and searchlights were confused by the momentum of the bombing.

"Duesseldorf lay quiet as the first of the bombers came over.

"On so clear a night the flash of the heaviest bombs was astonishingly brilliant but even more dramatic was the sudden answer of the defenses.

"Hundreds of searchlights came on at once and the sky was filled with bursting shells.

"To overcome such opposition it was necessary that bombs should fall in a ceaseless rain. They did.

"Fires sprang up quickly as bombs were dropped, and above them were columns of smoke up to 1,000 feet."

One pilot said, "The fires seemed to be in command. Spreading outwards from the main targets, flames ate their way into most parts of the town."

In addition to this vastly successful raid on Duesseldorf, other RAF planes attacked targets in northern France and the low countries overnight.

Great Iron Center

Among the industrial plants situated at Duesseldorf are the Rheinmetal Iron & Steel Works, which compare in size and importance to the Krupp Armament Works, and the Vereinigte Stahlwerke (United Steel Works). The latter is one of the four biggest plants of its kind in Germany.

Targets attacked by British bombers and fighters last night in occupied territory included airdromes in the lowlands and railway yards at Caens and elsewhere in northern France. Six freight trains were reported shot up with cannonfire from low-flying raiders.

The night's plane losses included 30 bombers and one fighter.

While the RAF was engaged over Germany, Nazi night raiders lashed at scattered points on the British east and northeast coasts.

County Detention Home Population Rises to 17, Highest in History

Seventeen children, including her son-in-law in an army camp are among the residents. Judge Gast said he sent the mother a telegram yesterday to the effect that it would be wise for her to return home at once and take care of her children.

two delinquent girls, brought the Marion county detention home population to a record high this week-end, Juvenile Judge Oscar Gast reported.

Four children, sisters, are from a home broken up when a father was sent to the workhouse. An effort is being made to send two of the girls to the King's Daughter's home at Bucyrus and the other two to the children's home at Worthington.

The former high, the judge recalled, was 13, when the detention home was on Wallace street.

The detention home quarters, now at the Marion County home on the Claridon road, were filled to capacity this morning, Clarence D. Keil, superintendent, reported to the judge. The quarters are six rooms in the west wing.

Five children are from a family who have been involved in a non-payment of rent case in municipal court. No legal action was taken, because the parents found a place in which to store their furniture and have moved in with relatives. The seventeenth case is a girl dependent who is being detained at the home.

Home troubles involving dependent children are the principal reason for the population record, the judge said. Only two delinquent cases are being detained, two girls who ran away from home.

Guard Your Words

A SERMONETTE

By REV. EPHRIAM M. HERTZLER

Pastor, First Church of the Brethren

"Thou shalt not go up and down as a talebearer among thy people."—Leviticus 19:16.

"Boys flying kites haul in their white-winged birds;
But you can't do that way when you're flying words.
'Careful with fire is good advice we know;
'Careful with words is ten times doubly so."

—Carleton

THE author of that very interesting book "Cameos from Calvary," relates this story of a talebearer that is much to the point. "A certain woman became a menace in her neighborhood on account of her gossiping tongue. No one's reputation was safe, and no one could restrain her. Finally, in desperation, they brought her to her parish priest. He was an understanding man. He listened to the story and imposed upon her a strange penance. "Take" he said, "a hundred small feathers, and drop them one by one from this mile-post to the next." That did not seem hard to do. "And then," he continued, "come back by the same way, and gather them up and bring them to me again."

Sometime later she stood before her confessor with only a few feathers in her hand, for as she had dropped them the wind had scattered them far and wide. "You see my daughter, what this means," he said, "Your words lightly spoken are as feathers dropped by the way. But they are quickly carried far beyond the hope of recovery, and fall where we cannot trace them."

Yes, our words of gossip are scattered like feathers in the wind. But here our figure breaks down, for the words we thus glibly speak are not as innocent as feathers, nor do they so lightly fall. O, how deeply they sometimes wound!. The recollection of unguarded words of gossip frequently remain like irritating bits of shot and shell which soldiers sometimes carry in their bodies after their wounds are outwardly healed. A gossipy tongue usually strikes at what folks hold dearest, their good name and reputation, and it oft-times is easier to forgive and forget an act of injustice than to pardon a slurring remark or a libelous report. No wonder the psalmist likens unguarded words to flying arrows. There are no wounds more irritating or more difficult to heal than the wounds which evil words inflict.

Idle gossiping is the most injurious pastime. Only God can measure the harm done in a community by men and women who find an unwholesome delight in dissecting their neighbors' reputation and spreading every idle tale. Again the psalmist says of such, they "whet their tongue like a sword, and bend their bows to shoot their arrows, even bitter words." A person with a gossip-loving tongue is no respecter of persons. Such would just as readily smite the good name of the innocent, as denounce the guilty. A multitude of men and women with a past would be able to live down the painful mistakes of former days and become an asset to their respective neighborhoods were it not for the little tete-a-tete gatherings where talebearers meet. We would do infinitely better if we would blot their transgressions out of our book of remembrance, as God does, and lend such people a helping hand.

Among the graces of Christian love, I doubt whether there is any more charming than this "rejoiceth not in iniquity," spoken by St. Paul in that great love chapter of Corinthians. Such has no pleasure in digging-up a sordid story and repeating it again and again. A love-filled heart manifests itself in a love-controlled tongue: it will not parade a brother's shame; nay it will not speak of it except to remedy a condition or to save another from evil, and then with greatest care.

There is sound philosophy, and religion too, in the following lines that appear among the "memory gems" of an old school reader:

"If wisdom's ways you wisely seek,
Five things observe with care
Of whom you speak, to whom you speak,
And how, and when and where."

The home of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Kimmel of Prospect was the scene of the marriage of their daughter, Eugenia Esther, to Frank E. Mapel of Columbus, Rt. 4, Marion, Saturday evening at 8:30 o'clock. Swimming Pool Chief Issue in Senate Race

By The Associated Press

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Aug. 1 — In ten hours of voting today, Kentucky Democrats will write the verdict to a primary campaign which had a swimming pool as its chief issue.

The voting will determine whether Senator A. B. "Happy" Chandler or John Young Brown, Lexington attorney, is to be the Democrats' nominee for the United States senate.

Brown has made Chandler's acceptance of a swimming pool in the backyard of his Versailles home as a gift from Ben Collins, Louisville contractor, the single major issue of the contest, which has overshadowed the Republican and congressional campaigns.

Combination Sales Hit by Henderson's Order

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1—Price Administrator Leon Henderson said yesterday that combination sales "which compel a purchaser to buy unwanted merchandise in order to obtain an article he could have purchased as a separate unit in March" constituted a violation of the general maximum price regulations.

"These combination sales were instituted to "move" slow-selling merchandise at the expense of the buyer," Henderson said.

"If the seller offered the article desired by the purchaser as a separate unit in March and is offering it for sale now, he must permit the purchaser to acquire it separately at the maximum price fixed by the general maximum price regulation."

JUST THINGS

Army Drink

HOUSEWIVES today should look to their culinary laurels with Johnny and Willie turning cooks and bakers in our Uncle Sammy's cooking schools. And from what we hear the lads wield a mean egg beater and can whip up as nifty a cake as ever saw the inside of an oven. But they also look after the vitamin intake—in other words, if the soldiers refuse to assimilate a plentiful supply of minerals and vitamins from an economical and readily available source because they don't like it—well something just has to be done about it. Frinstance, there's rhubarb, says Lieut. Col. Frank E. Noyes, Q. M. C. commandant of the Fifth Service Command Bakers and Cooks School. It's cheap this time of year, plentiful and contains many valuable nutritive elements. But large portions of stewed rhubarb and rhubarb pie which found their way to the garbage can after being served in Army messes prompted food experts to set about doing something about it. Here's what they conocted—a hot weather beverage that not only has all the beneficial qualities of its chief ingredient, but appeals to the taste, even of those who turned thumbs down on rhubarb after it was cooked. The recipe follows: one part orange or pineapple juice, two parts sugar, four parts raw rhubarb juice, 12 parts water and ice. The rhubarb should be put through a food chopper and strained to remove the pulp.

Christmas Cards

IT'S Christmas in July so far as the folks who pass on the Christmas greeting card styles are concerned. One day this week distinguished guests sat down to an old-fashioned Christmas dinner, turkey, cranberries and all of the fixings and took a look at the 1942 Christmas cards at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel in New York City. With the thermometer mounting the setting—in a cool room of course—was a Christmas tree, mistletoe, snow and bright candles. It was the 100th anniversary of the first Christmas card published in England in 1842. The original is now in the British Museum in London. It's easy to guess — your 1942 greeting card will be patriotic in theme with the red, white and blue of Old Glory added to the red, white and green of holly and poinsettia. Santa tearing through the sky in his sleigh has given way to Santa shaking hands with Uncle Sam; there are ingenious cards to make the soldiers laugh, serious ones to make them realize how we feel about them. Nor will your favorite air warden be forgotten—there are special greetings for him or her. And there are scores expressing our love of our homes, our love of our country and our worship of the Prince of Peace.

New Book

"LAST TRAIN FROM BERLIN," by Howard K. Smith, former Columbia Broadcasting system correspondent in Berlin who is now stationed in Berne, will be published Sept. 8, his publishers announce. Mr. Smith was the last American reporter to leave Nazi Germany as a free man, for he got out to Switzerland on the very day the Japanese attacked Pearl Harbor. Before that, he had been in Hitler's Reich off and on for six years, at first as a student and later as a representative of the press. He reports in detail how the German people reacted when food and clothing rations shrunk lower and lower during the early winter, to the point where many citizens were in actual want for the first time in the Nazi regime. He demonstrates how the overwhelming majority of the German people are against the Nazis, and side with them now only through fear of what will happen when Germany loses. He warns strongly against overconfidence, and against the folly of waiting for Germany to break up without many hard blows from the outside.

MRS. MURDOCK TAKES A CASE

by George Harmon Coxe

CHAPTER THIRTY-NINE

Trapped

JOYCE MURDOCK put down the telephone and went to the hall closet. She pulled out her tweed coat and a dark green felt hat that tipped up in the back and down in front. At the mirror she adjusted it aware now of a feeling of excitement.

She slipped on her coat, went back to the desk, and picked up the rolled photographs. Mannish in cut, the coat had a deep inner pocket and she put the pictures there, buttoning only the lower button so as not to crush them. She inspected her handbag, stopped with her hand on the doorknob to see if she had forgotten anything, and went out.

Kent had said he would bring the car around for her, and she found it parked between two others. She started for it, opening her handbag and taking out her keys. The doors were locked and she opened the right-hand one and pushed over behind the wheel, rolling down the window as she inserted the ignition key. When she reached over to close the door a man was standing there watching her.

"Oh!"

Her voice caught on that startled cry and for an instant her heart stopped. Fear streaked through her and her body froze. She tried to find her voice again and it failed her and there was nothing she could do except stare.

Don Raeburn was standing with one hand on the car door and the other deep in his pocket. His topcoat was buttoned, the collar upturned. His hatbrim was low, and beneath it the swart, sharp-featured face was a paradox with its smiling lips and grim metallic eyes.

"I have a gun here." He was very polite about it and his voice was as she remembered it, his pronunciation studied and precise. He moved the pocket of his coat so she could see the outline of the muzzle. "Please do not make any noise."

Unfinished Work

Curiously, his voice brought relief to her. She began to breathe again and her heart took up its beating. Warmth returned to her cheeks and only the thin line of her spine remained cold.

He was waiting for me, she thought. Down the street or behind one of these cars. And now he's going to get in.

He sat down beside her, one hand on the gun. He closed the door and sat back.

"What do you want?" she asked, ashamed that her voice should sound so weak and inane.

"First," he said, "we will drive away from here. I think. I know you'll be careful."

She started the engine, worked her way out of the parking space, and with the job of driving occupying some of her attention she found it possible to think again.

"How long had you been waiting?"

"Not long. I was trying to decide what to do."

"You're taking rather a long chance, aren't you? With the police looking for you?"

"One has to take chances sometimes."

Joyce turned downtown. The thing to do was talk—and keep him talking—until she knew what he intended to do.

"What do you want with me?" she said.

"You told the police you saw me last night?"

"Yes."

"I was afraid you might."

"You saw me?"

"No, but I knew that you and the Stewart girl were friends. I was afraid you might have been in one of those cars along the street, but I could not wait to find out." He hesitated, continued slowly. "That is unfortunate. But for you there would be no evidence against me."

Joyce swallowed and tried to keep her voice steady. "Wouldn't it be better for you to try and get away alone?"

"Please!" They were at an intersection and he reached over and turned the wheel. "We have gone far enough in this direction. . . That is better. It would be easier, perhaps, but my work is not finished."

"Oh," Joyce said, her heart sinking.

"And until it is I must make sure that you do not make it more difficult for me."

Nazi Business

When Kent Murdock realized that Joyce had hung up on him a growing uneasiness began to eat away at his thoughts. He put down the telephone and reached for a cigaret, but even after he had lit it, he stood there, his face somber and his eyes dark with doubt.

Ward Allen was running away and Joyce was going over to talk him out of it. What else had she said? And why did she want him there—and Fenner and Hestor? Although he could find no answer for this last, the impression persisted that there was more to this request of hers than she had indicated.

He started along the hall, his irritation mounting.

That there was some connection between her request and the murder of Clarke and Hardacker, he had no doubt: what bothered him was that she persisted in participating in the investigation. Grunting aloud, he wheeled and went back to the telephone. He gave his number and listened to the distant ringing. After five such rings he hung up.

John Nason was pacing the floor and Hestor had seated herself again.

"It was Joyce," Murdock said, and went on to tell what she had wanted.

"Go to Ward Allen's apartment?" Hestor was indignant. "Why should I?"

Her look and caustic reaction fanned Murdock's already smoldering irritation.

"Because maybe she thinks she's got the answer to those killings."

"Suppose she has? How does it concern me?"

"You'd like to know about it, wouldn't you?" Fenner asked.

"Not particularly."

"I think you would," Murdock said. "And I think you ought to come along too, Nason."

"Nonsense."

"No." Nason looked at him sourly and Murdock waited, recalling the things he knew about the lawyer. "You've done a lot of business for the German government in the past, Nason, haven't you? I remember before war started you straightened out some trouble for the captain of a German freighter. And later, there was some tanker that put in the harbor. Something about internment, wasn't it? And you defended the shipping company—just like you defended that Bund leader, Dorstmann. . . . Until recently I understood you've had pretty close to unlimited credit at certain banks."

Nason's eyes were veiled. "I'm afraid I don't follow, you."

"Ward Allen was mixed up with the Nazis in Caragua. So was Perry Clarke. You represent the buyers of Mrs. Losado's estate—when she gets it. You do business with Nazis. Could it be that the Nazis want to buy that estate? Or would that be too coincidental?"

NEW STYLE SINKS NOW ON MARKET

Designed To Fit Into War Housing Requirements.

Fitting today's low cost market of military, naval and defense housing, plumbing manufacturers have designed new styles of enameled cast iron flat-rim sinks, according to the Plumbing and Heating Industries bureau.

These new sinks range in length from 24 to 60 inches. All are 21 inches wide for building into metal or wood cabinets. The length of the sink is determined by the style. The 60-inch model has two basins and two drainboards, the 24-inch fixture is a single compartment - flat rim model for building in. These new low price sinks made their debut with two other types: the single compartment double drainboard style, and the single compartment single drainboard.

Each sink has an integral soap dish and a wide, full-length ledge that provides a water-proof surface for cleansers and brushes or a safe spot for glassware during dishwashing. This ledge is the base for the built-in fittings—the single spout that can be swung out of the way, or adjusted to fill either compartment of the sink and the hot and cold water supply fittings.

Two Ordnance Plant Deeds Go On Record

Besides the son in Green Camp he leaves two daughters, Eva at home, and Mrs Hazel Smith of near Canal Winchester. Conversion of Houses To Multiple Units Involves Heating Problems

Circulators for Each Living Unit Recommended for Economy and Comfort of Occupants.

When a house is being converted into a multiple-family dwelling for the housing of workers in war industries some changes in the heating plant are usually required for comfort as well as economy says the Plumbing and Heating Industries bureau.

The extent of the changes depends on the number of families to be housed, the condition of the plant, and its capacity.

Many existing hot water heating plants have a reserve capacity in the boiler sufficient to heat additional space. Furthermore the heating load for a house can be substantially reduced by insulation thus enabling a boiler to heat more space.

There is no better way to pep up the operation of an old gravity hot water heating plant than to add a circulator. The circulator is automatically controlled by a thermostat. When the thermostat calls for heat, the circulator pumps water to all radiators thus insuring rapid and positive circulation of the water.

Two-Family Plan

When a single-family house is being remodeled to accommodate two families, the installation of two circulators and two thermostats so that each family will have individual control of the temperature in its living quarters is recommended by the bureau.

Three circulators and three thermostats are recommended for three families, four for four families, and so on. This is the standard set in many of the newer and set in many of the newer family unit is zoned separately.

While the zoning of the heating system for a house represents an added cost for original equipment, in the long run there is a substantial saving in fuel as well as greater comfort.

Thus when the rooms on the west side of a house are warmed by the afternoon sun, the thermostat which controls the circulators will not ask for heat for the radiators in this zone. The prevention of overheating provides greater comfort as well as fuel economy. Similarly underheating is prevented by the fact that the circulator insures positive distribution of water to all radiators.

Balanced Heating

By the use of valves on the various mains going to different parts of the house, the entire system can be accurately balanced.

By the use of flow control valves and indirect heaters, the boiler will heat the domestic hot water supply the year around.

Steam heating plants can be similarly zoned by the use of motorized valves controlled by room thermostats.

In modernizing any house it is advisable for the homeowner to consult with a reliable heating and piping contractor before the plans are drawn. An experienced contractor will not only be able to suggest the best way to plan the heating system but will also be familiar with the material now available and will know which materials may be obtained without delay.

The new Defense Housing Critical list provides for the release of heating materials including boilers, radiators, circulators and thermostats for the conversion of single-family houses into multiple-family dwellings. The government feels that the rehabilitation of old houses is a short-cut to the increase in living accommodations now so necessary in many war industry areas.

Q. Our peonies do not have much bloom, this is the second year in succession that this has occurred. The foliage is very luxurious and of splendid rich color. The few buds do not mature. The plants were fertilized last fall thoroughly and they are well located as to sun. They are more than 10 years old. J D B, Mountsville, W. Va.

A. Your peonies have an infection of peony blight. This disease may be controlled by cutting off the old peony stocks early in the spring before the new growth starts and drenching the crown of the plant and the ground around it with Bordeaux mixture. Then, as the new growth starts, it may be well to spray with Bordeaux mixture or dust with copper-lime dust once or twice before the foliage is a foot or so in height.

Serious Situation Grows Worse

LATEST figures on overcrowding at the City hospital should provide local officials with convincing new evidence to present to federal officials in support of the move for increased hospital facilities. The report yesterday, listing 67 occupants in a 50-bed hospital, indicates that the situation, serious over a period of several years, has reached a critical stage.

The problem of federal authorities in charge of supplying building materials for the nation's growing needs is one which makes it necessary for them to extend grants only where safeguarding of health and life is vitally urgent. Beyond doubt that condition exists in Marion as far as its hospital facilities are concerned and there is certainty that the situation will become worse with new arrivals rapidly swelling the population.

There ought to be no difficulty in proving to federal officials that adequate and prompt measures should be provided in behalf of a population which includes thousands of persons who have come here to serve in the war emergency.

Congratulations and Best Wishes

MARION is suffering a serious loss in the retirement of Bill Williams from his work as a member of the Harding High school faculty and as coach of athletics. However, the fine record made by him at his post here could have had but one result—advancement to a larger field of service—and that point has been reached.

So the people of Marion, while deeply regretting losing him as a teacher, coach and resident of the community, offer their congratulations for the recognition he has won and their best wishes for the success they know will be his in the future.

Although he has been known to people of Marion and other communities in north-central Ohio chiefly for his accomplishments in the field of sports, he also has outstanding qualifications as a teacher and aims to go higher in that profession. The road toward that goal will be open in his new assignment at University school, O. S. U., where he will not only teach and coach, but also study for a higher scholarship degree.

We believe it is no overstatement to rate Mr. Williams' record as Harding's athletics coach as the most notable in the school's history. There have been other able coaches whose teams have won championships and there is no intention of minimizing their accomplishments. But not any of these covered periods of years as long as the four-year string of successes credited to Mr. Williams, and it is on the basis of this test of time that he stands preeminent.

Skill as a coach and knowledge of sports are not the only factors which have contributed to his success. His fine character and personality and qualities of leadership have provided a wholesome influence for all the boys under his guidance, helping to inspire and prepare them for worthwhile performance in later life as well as for victories in their school sports activities.

Now What Is Russia Fighting For?

ONLY two possibilities remain to stave off world-shaking defeat of Russia by Germany. If Germany has exhausted itself in its drive to mop up the last source of resistance in Europe and if there still is a Russian army in reserve to take advantage of such a turn in the tide of battle, Russia may survive.

This is a good time for those who have wondered what Russia was fighting for to arrive at an answer. Russia is fighting for survival. Great Britain is fighting for survival. The United States, though its people haven't realized it yet, is fighting for survival. China is fighting for survival.

The will to survive is the one thing they have in common. Their differing social and economic structures have no more to do with the job at hand than the differences in the animals fleeing before a forest fire. To pretend that they have is as absurd as arguing over which is the proper end to open eggs.

If Russia does survive, and if the United States, Great Britain and China survive, there undoubtedly will be some jolly arguments over their various notions about how the world should be organized. Nevertheless, the important thing now is to make sure there will be an opportunity to argue. If its companions in the fight for survival could be sure right now that there'd be a chance to worry about Russian Communism 20 years hence they'd be more than willing to sing a verse or two of the Internationale by way of celebration.

CUPID IN WARTIME

Startling statistics gathered at Camp Wallace, Tex., by a Minnesota private: Thirty-three service men were asked this question: "Are our sweethearts true?" Table of results as to what their prewar sweethearts were doing: Two former sweethearts are now married—to other men. Eight former "true blues" have become engaged—to other men. Thirteen have stopped writing entirely—to their soldier sweethearts. Two felt as though they were obligated and were doing so for no other reason. Eight have remained true.—Minneapolis Star-Journal.

Writer's Prediction Russia Will Beat Hitler in 1942 Not Believed Generally.

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1 — A [illegible] magazine told [illegible] that we are [illegible] about ready for [illegible] Russia [illegible] Hitler in 1942.

The idea of the article was that [illegible] Russian secret armies [illegible] one hundred divisions, and [illegible] four million men is supposed to be about ready.

The author, Pierre Van Paassen, an eminent analyst of foreign affairs, also claimed the Russians have secretly built most of their industry safely back of the Urals, and therefore are in good shape.

There is no one here who does not hope Mr Van Paassen is correct. But more competent authorities are encountering difficulty in accepting his suggestion that the Russian retreat this time is a come-on game.

The Don river basin, which has fallen into Nazi hands contains 80 per cent of the coal ordinarily used by the Russians in peacetime, 75 per cent of the pig iron, 60 per cent of the iron ore, 85 per cent of the sugar and 95 per cent of manganese. Mines and sugarfields cannot be moved.

In peacetime, the Reds also drew 85 per cent of their oil from the Caucasus, which is now just beyond Hitler's reaching fingers. They produced 593,000 barrels of oil a day of which 400,000 came from the Caucasus.

They are now supposed to have safely in storage 1,000,000 barrels, which would be 200 days of a peacetime supply. This could be made to last somewhat longer now with supplies from newly-developed Ural wells.

It is no doubt true they have 4,000,000 fresh troops or more in reserve, but the equipment of these is questionable. It is no secret that they are long on manpower and short on material.

Anyone who wants to think they are fooling, thus will have difficulty convincing the proper authorities here who assume a much graver attitude toward the Russian situation.

German Oil

A late check on German oil, incidentally places their war use in active operations at 400,000 barrels a day. They are getting about 100,000 from Rumania, 43,000 from Poland, Albania and Germany.

But their synthetic production in addition to these supplies, still leaves them about 50 per cent short. They are drawing on their reserves, therefore, to the extent of about 250,000 barrels a day, which shows how badly they need the Caucasus fields.

Justice Stone Refuses

The idea of Mr. Roosevelt appointing Chief Justice Stone to head a rubber survey slid out of the news fast, for a very good reason. Justice Stone flatly rejected the President's suggestion.

He is personally opposed to mixing court and executive matters, even has some private feelings about other justices making public speeches. His declination was smoothed over by both his office and the White House, suggesting he had not been asked.

Roosevelt vs. Farley

Most politicos think Jim Farley will defeat Mr. Roosevelt in the choice of a Democratic gubernatorial candidate at the coming New York state convention. As Mayor LaGuardia has suggested, Farley is perhaps the best delegate picker in the world today and he started early.

In the New York delegation in congress, however, there is a belief that Mr. Roosevelt will throw in federal pressure (promises of jobs and federal appropriations?) to make enough delegates change their minds.

If he goes to work actively on this basis, they say Farley will find himself facing too much power. Until such pressure begins to appear, however, the odds favor Farley.

At any rate, everyone now knows Messrs. Farley and Roosevelt have irretrievably broken, and Mr. Farley will oppose a fourth term more actively and vociferously than he opposed the third.

Army-Navy Shakeup

Calls rising from administration friends in congress seem to signify they are paving the way for Mr. Roosevelt to shake up the army and navy.

First, Lyndon Johnson of Texas came back from the far east and started talking about "brass hats" for the first time in his life. Then Oklahoma's Josh Lee went after both the army and navy, and Representative Coffee, of Washington, joined what seemed to be a chorus.

Asks About That Second Front.

Wide World Features

HERE'S what some lay war analysts had to say on that much-discussed question of a "second front" to relieve Russia:

DEWITT MACKENZIE. Wide World war analyst: It cannot be emphasized too strongly that only the Allied high command is in position to judge whether the establishment of a second front in Western Europe is feasible at this juncture. If such an operation is practicable we undoubtedly shall get it, since it is obvious that any action which would compel a diversion of Nazi strength from the Soviet theater in the near future might well mean the difference between victory and defeat for the hard-pressed Russians in the crucial battle for the Caucasus.

Dewitt Mackenzie

RAYMOND GRAM SWING. MBS: It it doubtful if a second front could be opened now on a scale affecting the war in a permanent strategic way. But it may be imperative to open one at a sacrifice, so as to maintain unity with Russia and to keep the possibility of a truly effective two-front war next year.

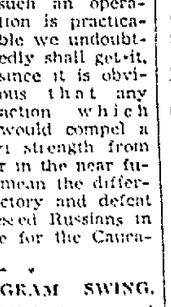
MAJOR GEORGE FIELDING ELIOT. N. Y. Herald Tribune and CBS: We must use every available means of diverting German forces from the Russian front. That is the real meaning of "second front." We should effect the maximum diversion possible whether by bombings, by Commando raids or by actual invasion of the European continent. Our methods must be in accordance with our means, especially shipping and bomber planes. Otherwise, Soviet Russia will be compelled to compromise with or suffer invasion from Japan.



Maj. Geo. F. Eliot

MORGAN BEATTY. BLU network: Time for an allied counter attack is after the Nazi summer offensive has reached its peak, which should be about Sept. 6 when the weather in Russia begins to interfere and the supply problem grows acute. I think the term "second front" too vague for adequate calculation, but suggest supply lines to Russia the most important second front possible.

Morgan Beatty

HANSON W. BALDWIN. N. Y. Times: Operations that are strategically desirable are not always strategically possible. There can be no doubt that now or within the next few weeks the opening of a second land front on the continent of Europe would be very desirable strategically. But the shipping shortage, supply difficulties, inadequate amounts of proper equipment, inadequately trained troops in sufficient numbers, the great strength of the German fortifications along the coast of Western Europe, and the great size of the Axis armies which permit large garrisons in Western Europe despite the heavy concentrations in Russia would make the establishment now or in the near future of another permanent land front in Europe very, very hazardous—indeed, more of a desperate gamble than a practical military operation.

This situation will change with time, but there is little time; Russia's need for a diversion is great. Therefore increasingly intensive bombing operations coupled with large-scale Commando raids by forces of a division or more are indicated immediately with the objective the eventual seizure of a beachhead and the extension of that beachhead into a second front next spring or if the opportunity permits—sooner.

From News of Other Years

TEN YEARS AGO

It was Monday, Aug. 1, 1932.

A fire that for three hours threatened to destroy the business district on the south side of the square at Kenton was brought under control shortly before noon after causing damage estimated at more than $100,000.

D. T. Mills, former superintendent of schools at Agosta, took over his position as superintendent of the Marion county schools. His first official act was to appoint F. P. Hinamon of the Beaver-Foster road as attendance officer for the county schools.

Wives and friends of members of the Y's Men's club of the Y. M. C. A. were guests at a picnic supper held at Camp Robert Uhler, Hepburn. Several of the members entertained with an informal program in charge of E. N. Sloan. Harold Cook, Guy Spangler, H. Van Oss and M. H. Hinklin.

Rev. H. E. Williamson of Oakland Evangelical church officiated at a double wedding at the parsonage on Bellefontaine avenue, using the Quaker ceremony in which no responses are made except the joining of hands by the couple wed. The couples married in the ceremony were Miss Florence Drake of Marion and Homer K. Krouse of Bellefontaine and Miss Freda Patrick of Marion and Kenneth L. Hogue of West Mansfield.

Miss Mella Van Meter gave a party at her home on North State street at which Miss Mary Helphrey of Utica, former Marion school teacher, was a guest of honor.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

It was Tuesday, Aug. 1, 1922.

President Harding's plan for settlement of the railway strike was made public in its official detail just as the executive committee of the striking railway shopmen went into conference to determine their attitude toward the President's proposals. In its essentials the plan proposed immediate return to work of the shop men with seniority rights unimpaired; rehearing by the U. S. railway board of matters in controversy and agreement by the carriers and by the unions to recognize the validity of the labor act and to obey the board's rulings.

Henry C. Sharpless, 74, one of Marion's pioneer residents, died at his home on North State street. He was the father of Edward F. Sharpless, who became widely known on the stage as Reynard, the ventriloquist.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Harris Graybill of Fountain street and a daughter to Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Black of Darius street.

Great Britain dispatched notes to her varied allied debtors announcing that the British government was willing to accept reduced reparations from Germany but could not cancel war debts owing to Great Britain while the United States was justifiably asking for payment of the money owed to her by Britain.

The feature picture at the Marion theater was "Woman's Place", starring Constance Talmadge, and at the Grand there was a vaudeville bill including "Col. Pattee" advertised as "the old soldier fiddler."

Miss Margaret Makeever of South Seffner avenue returned home from Columbus where she had taken a six week special training course in Ohio State university.

Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Morrow and daughter Margaret of New York were guests of Mr. Morrow's mother, Mrs. G. H. Morrow of Barnhart street.

Mrs. Wilfred Lane was hostess to the Tuesday afternoon club at her home on Cherry street.

Miss Vera Sickels was elected secretary of the Business Woman's club and Mrs. J. W. Freeland was made a member.

Today and Tomorrow

Must Bomber Production Be Reduced If U. S. Gets More Cargo Planes?

By WALTER LIPPMANN

IN REGARD to cargo and transport planes, there is no doubt that if we are to build a great fleet of them, we shall have to do with less of some of the other things in the military and naval program. But why must we assume that the only way to get more cargo planes is to build less bombers? Why is this the choice that has to be made? Is it really true that we must sacrifice the striking power of what has proved itself to be our most effective weapon if we are to enjoy the advantages of increased air transport?

That is the crucial question. The director of the WPB for aircraft production, Mr. Harold E. Talbott, has just told the Truman committee that, with adequate supplies of tools and raw materials, production in the aircraft field could be increased by 25 percent. This would give us an immense cargo fleet over and above, not instead of, the fighting air force. Why then must we jump blindly to the conclusion that the tools and raw materials for the cargo planes must be taken away from the bombers? Let us first have an inquiry whether any or all of the tools and raw materials could be obtained by reducing some of the other less important weapons and equipment that the navy and army have on their schedules. For the conduct of this war some of the other weapons and equipment may quite possibly be less important than a great air force plus a great fleet of air transports.

Wider Choice

In this issue is to be discussed lucidly and judiciously, we must not let the choice be narrowed to bombers and cargo planes. It may be just as reasonable to insist that the choice is between cargo planes and some fraction of the surface navy, the ordnance, and the equipment of the army ground forces. For all the other programs draw upon the same pool of machine tools and critical materials, and there is no reason in the world why the real issue should be obscured by assuming without further inquiry that all the machine tools and critical materials which could be allocated to aircraft are already allocated.

They have not been. An inquiry might show, for example, that the allocation of machine tools to aircraft is 25 percent and of critical materials 15 percent. Inquiry might show further that to have the bombers and the cargo planes besides, the allotment to the aircraft industry might have to be raised to 40 percent of the machine tools and 20 percent of the critical materials. This might then require the navy, the ordnance and the ground army to reduce their total programs, say by something like 15 percent.

This very rough illustration brings out the important point that possibly, and indeed almost certainly, we do not have to choose between cargo planes and our best weapon, the bomber. If the problem is looked at as a whole, the real choice may be between cargo planes on the one hand and certain weapons and equipment which for this war are of less importance.

Surely there is no reason why we should confine ourselves to comparing the cargo plane with the one most desirable weapon at the very top of the list of things we want. Why not start at the bottom of the list and find out what are the weapons and equipment, requiring machine tools and critical materials, that we could most readily do without if we have to have more air power? There is no reason why the existing division of tools and materials among aircraft, navy, ordnance and army ground forces is to be regarded as final and untouchable.

It follows that in order to reach a sound decision, congress and the public can do much to insist that Mr. Nelson and the procurement officers of all the services draw up a true budget of the real cost of the cargo planes—that is to say, a budget which shows what the other services could best give up if the cargo plane fleet were expanded.

Then the decision on this budget of facts should be made by the combined chiefs of staff. For they alone have the knowledge and the responsibility for determining what balance among all tactical weapons fits best their strategical

Benefits Government Demands for Private Employes Denied to Its Personnel in Postoffice.

By DAMON RUNYON

MY RECENT article on the plight of the p[illegible] employes who are still working [illegible] the same scale of pay of 17 years ago wh[illegible] workers in all private industry are receiv[illegible] increases commensurate with the rising cost [illegible]

[illegible] on light numerous letters from members of the department throughout the country and additional information.

It seems that one phase of the matter I neglected to mention is the overtime situation. The same government that forces private industry to pay time-and-one-half for overtime, pays its own employes around 16 cents less on the hour for overtime than they receive for straight time.

Most of the postoffice employes' overtime in any one hunk comes at Christmas. I think all of my readers will agree that whatever the holiday season means for anyone else, it spells only work for postoffice folks. Their task then becomes prodigious.

I explained in my previous article that the pension deduction on postoffice employes was increased 5 per cent the first of July. But they still have no provision for their widows beyond what they have paid into the fund themselves as to policemen, firemen and other workers under social security.

THEN there is another little item that postoffice employes have to take care of, which is the uniform. Most persons seem to have an idea that this is furnished these public servants, but as a matter of fact the employes have to pay for their garb and thus their income is reduced 60 to 80 dollars per year—and going up.

It is not easy to get into the postal service. The government requires a high type of employe in that department. It requires intelligence and good physical condition. Of course it also requires moral probity. It's best promise to a letter carrier, for instance, is a pension after what practically amounts to a lifetime of conscientious service, if the man's legs hold out.

In no other field of government or private service is there less reward for the quality and quantity of effort demanded. The work of the postal employes is of a skilled nature and most exacting. So are the regulations under which they work. If a money order clerk commits an error in making change, as sometimes happens, no allowance is made for the mistake. He must dig up the difference out of his own pocket, though length of service and past performance might argue unavoidable error.

In these times the postoffice employes are being paid at about the same rate as laborers. Their work has been doubled by the war, along with their expenses. The employes are expected to continue meeting their fixed obligations, such as insurance, the education of their children and the higher cost of food and other necessities on the same money they were getting in 1925.

THEY are constantly urged to buy war bonds and stamps to help out in the war effort and have done this to as great an extent as any other class of wage earners of proportionately the same income and in many cases at considerable sacrifice. They have no union. They cannot strike or otherwise enforce their requests for a better scale of pay.

Their only hope is relief through congress before which a bill in their interest is now pending. But in the meantime, many postoffice employes, attracted by higher wages offered in private industry, are leaving the government service, and more will follow unless they get a boost from Uncle Sam. It strikes me as false economy and a bad policy to develop high class employes in any field only to lose them for lack of foresight in raising their pay to meet conditions.

Desert Warfare

Nothing piques the imagination like desert warfare. To aid your speculations here are some pointers gleaned from interviews with Massachusetts Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge, recently returned from duty as a reserve major in Libya.

Warfare in the African desert is like Indian fighting in the southwest. For one thing the spaces are so vast and tactical movements so rapid that Rule No. 1 is to scan the horizon constantly to keep from being captured by a surprise attack.

After dark, no lights or fires are permitted. Trucks are spaced several hundred yards apart for protection against bombardment. Therefore, as soon as the sun sets—suddenly—life comes to a standstill. There is no night life on the desert in wartime.

Water is the great problem. Best practice is to drink deeply at breakfast, then abstain till the next morning. Shaving is encouraged, despite the water shortage because it is good for morale to be clean shaven. To obtain water, it is necessary to present the desert army equivalent of a ration card.

The natives of the desert have moved away for the duration, yet the land is not given over completely to the armies that surge back and forth. Stray camels wander about. There are land mines by the thousand, and one of them may explode under you at any minute; truck drivers keep a bag of sand on the floorboards so their feet won't be blown off—in case. Everywhere is the litter of mechanized war—derelict tanks and trucks, ruined equipment, ammunition—being buried slowly under the sands that covers the litter of all battles that have been fought before on one of the world's most popular battlefields.

Horseshoes in Demand

(From Highway Highlights)

Horseshoe manufacturing companies report a backlog of orders for horseshoes sufficient for five months' normal operation as a result of wartime restriction on highway transportation. Most of these factories are now loaded up with subcontracts on war production carrying a higher priority rating than the A-3 classification given horse shoes.

Spy Plot

Elaine Carter, portrayed by Miss Rogers, is drawn to Lieut. Bill Gordon (Bowman) after a chance meeting, finds that he is secretly the author of a brilliant book about decoding spy messages, but conceals it because he does not wish to be summoned from active duty to a desk job. When Gordon meets Elaine's uncle, assistant to the secretary of the navy, she signals him not to give away her part in Bill's new assignment.

Having proved that enemy agents have a copy of a secret American code, Gordon tries to cultivate the friendship of Olivia Kerlov (Mona Maris), member of the ring who has killed an American naval commander. Elaine becomes very jealous. After a second murder has taken place, Olivia discovers Gordon's motives, and he is captured by her fellow plotters. Elaine, following Bill, is also captured. The solution provides plenty of surprises. In addition a comedy and a cartoon will be shown.

Comedy Romance

Joan Crawford and Melvyn Douglas are co-starred in a gay comedy romance, "They All Kissed the Bride," which begins Thursday and plays through Saturday. Miss Crawford returns to the type of romantic characterization which first made her a star, a dancing, romantic comedy role. Seen as a million-dollar heiress and a career woman, she discovers that making love is more fun than making money.

Joan Crawford manages in the hectic course of events to annex Allen Jenkins as her partner in a jitterbug contest. That they win it is due less to her ability as a dancer than to her inability to retain her feet. Also included in the cast is Roland Young and Billie Burke.

A sports reel concerning ponies and "Vandetta," a Passing Parade short, complete the bill.

Ohio Shows "Gay Sisters"

Continuing through Thursday, "The Gay Sisters," starring Barbara Stanwyck, which came to the Ohio theater yesterday will show there next week.

It is a story of the three Gaylord girls, Miss Stanwyck, Geraldine Fitzgerald and Nancy Coleman, whose fortune has been tied up in litigation for 23 years, since their young mother was drowned and their father was killed in France.

George Brent, a civil engineer who has grown wealthy while the sisters have become practically penniless, holds the fortune. He has a secret hold on Barbara, and the gloomy Gaylord house is a place of whispered rumors and speculation from all quarters until the time when the truth can no longer be kept under cover and the story breaks on the front page of every newspaper in the country.

Starting Friday, "Ten Gentlemen from West Point," a successor to "To the Shores of Tripoli," will appear on the Ohio screen for one week. It is the story of the valorous cadets who made the West Point of today possible with a reconstruction of the academy as it was in 1811. George Montgomery, one of the "ten gentlemen" has the leading masculine role and Maureen O'Hara is the leading lady. John Sutton has an important part in the action. The featured cast is headed by gigantic Laird Cregar, who plays the commandant of the post, while John Shepperd, Victor Francen, Harry Davenport, Ward Bond, Douglas Dumbrille and Ralph Byrd complete the cast.

To the recollections in later life of Gen. George Douglas Ramsay, one of the earliest West Point Cadets, script writers are indebted not only for the historical background of the film but for a parallel to its romantic triangle. In the yellowing pages of Gen. Ramsay's memoirs, reposing in the files of West Point's library, may be found the story of the love, in the year 1812, of Cadet Pratt and Lt. Gardner for the beautiful Miss Kingsley, which might well be "Ten Gentlemen's" George Montgomery, John Sutton and Miss O'Hara.

SCENE FROM "THE GAY SISTERS"

Barbara Stanwyck and George Brent have the leading roles in Warner Bros. new motion picture drama, "The Gay Sisters," now playing at the Ohio theater.

Thrillers On Marion Bill

A trio made up of Faye Emerson, Julie Bishop and Frank Wilcox have the stellar roles in "Lady Gangster," a swiftly moving story of crime and its consequences which will be shown at the Marion theater starting with a midnight show Saturday night and continuing through Monday. Faye Emerson plays the role of a girl who comes to the big city from a small town and falls in with a mob of criminals.

Showing with this picture will be "Top Sergeant," a melodrama of an underworld rat who tries to use the uniform of Uncle Sam as the perfect hideout for murder. Leo Carrillo, Andy Devine, Elyse Knox, and Don Terry are starred.

Paulette Goddard and Ray Milland find out in the comedy, "The Lady Has Plans," which is scheduled for Tuesday and Wednesday, that spies aren't always as smart as some people are likely to think they are. Completing the double role is "On the Sunny Side," the story of a European refugee who came to America, starring Roddy McDowell and Jane Darwell.

"Submarine Raider," a story of Dec. 7 at Pearl Harbor, will be featured Thursday through Saturday. The stellar roles are played by John Howard and Marguerite Chapman. Also showing is "Fighting Bill Fargo," in which Johnny Mack Brown becomes a hard-riding, two-fisted crusader Knight, Jeanne Kelly, Kenneth for freedom of the press. Fuzzy Knight, Jeanne Kelly, Kenneth Harlan, and Nell O'Day play supporting roles.

COSHOCTON, O., Aug. 1 — Striking Coshocton county miners scheduled a meeting with CIO-United Mine Workers organizers today with virtually every mine in the county closed and 300 workers idle. John Graham, UMW organizer, said the men, now paid $5 to $6.50 daily, are seeking the union scale of $7 for a seven-hour day.

Army Life Movie in Week's Opener at State Theater

Showing at the State theater Sunday and Monday will be two features, "Hurricane Smith," with Ray Middleton and Jane Wyatt, and "You're in the Army Now" with Jimmy Durante, Phil Silvers and Jane Wyman.

The latter film tells of the adventures of Durante and Silvers who, as the ace salesmen for the Whirlaway Vacuum Cleaner Co. attempt to sell a cleaner to a recruiting sergeant. In their enthusiasm they sign all the papers he puts in front of them, and shortly the army has two new and bewildered privates — two square pegs in two round holes.

A new colonel is assigned to their camp, a calvaryman who detests machinery and is furious when he learns his division is to be mechanized. To make matters worse his daughter, Miss Wyman, is in love with the young captain who has been sent to bring about the mechanization.

Tuesday's and Wednesday's offerings are "Black Cat", with Hugh Herbert and Broderick Crawford and "Dance, Girl, Dance", with Maureen O'Hara and Louis Hayward.

Ronald Reagan and Jane Wyman appear in "Angel from Texas" and Gene Autrey and Smiley Burnette, in "Mountain Rythm," the double bill for Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Indians Bow 6-4, To Athletics in Night Game; Reds Beat Braves, 5-2

Redlegs Tighten Third-Place Hold as Thompson Hurls Three-Hitter.

By The Associated Press

The Athletics, who are in the cellar anyway, where one contest up or down is of little moment, found some generous country cousins last night in the persons of the Cleveland Indians, who in the comparative solitude of Cleveland stadium separated themselves from a baseball victory by a score of 6-4.

But the A's were not altogether perfect, either.

Robert L. Johnson, an outfielder in the employe of Connie Mack, distinguished himself by clouting a home run in the fifth inning, his eleventh of the year, to give the A's three of their runs. His performance was slightly beclouded, however, by the fact that he never would have reached the batter's box in that inning had it not been for an error by Jim Hegan upon the occasion of a sacrifice bunt by Mike Kreevich.

The inning before, Philadelphia had come into possession of three runs, on a single, a fly which transformed itself into a double by being misjudged twice by Orls Hockett, an error by Ray Mack, another single and an error by Roy Westerly.

Four Unearned Runs

The net result was that four of the visitors' runs were unearned, though gratefully received, and Cleveland dropped a game behind the second-place Boston Redsox.

Only 5,422 customers, the smallest crowd in this city's five-year history of night baseball, attended the game.

The Indians - Athletics game originally scheduled for today has been combined with Sunday's contest to create a double-header.

"Twi-night" double-headers, baseball's contribution to the working man, may mean a boost at the boxoffice for most of the teams, but they're a pain in the neck to the New York Yankees.

This unnatural distortion of the national pastime is particularly displeasing to the Yankees for the simple reason that they find themselves now and then on the short end of the scores.

In their own park, equipped with all the modern conveniences except a set of lights, the Yankees do about as they please. But in recent westward journeys, the champs have bumped into bargain bills that start before supper.

Blow 5-Run Lead

Possibly the bombers still were mumbling over their double defeat at Chicago in one of these newfangled affairs Wednesday night, when they took the field at St. Louis yesterday to play the Browns in one game at 5 p. m. and a second at 8:30.

At any rate, they blew a five-run lead as the Brownies handed them their third straight loss, 9-8, and then had to call on Spurgeon Chandler to put an end to such foolishness by blanking the Browns on three hits in the afterpiece, winning 8-0 and running his consecutive shutout innings to 23.

The Boston Red Sox cut the Yankees' American league lead to a dozen games by nipping the Detroit Tigers, 7-6, in an afternoon game.

Seven-hit pitching by Johnny Humphries carried the Chicago White Sox to a 7-2 triumph over the Washington Senators in another night contest, with Myril Hoag hitting a triple and double and Taft Wright a triple and single.

In the only game played in the National League, the Cincinnati Reds tightened their grip on third place by bumping the Boston Braves, 5-2, on a three-hit pitching job by Gene Thompson.

Two games, the St. Louis Cardinals against the Giants at New York and the Pittsburgh Pirates against the Phils at Philadelphia, were postponed.

State Auditor Charged with "Cornering" Talent

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 1 — State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson, who has one of Ohio's outstanding softball teams, was accused yesterday of "cornering" two of the city's ace hurlers.

Rival sponsor George C Bobb, in a letter published in the Columbus Dispatch, charged that Warren Gerber and Clyde Kirkendall, members of the Ferguson Auditors and employed in Ferguson's office, had been forbidden to pitch for other teams.

Ferguson wasn't available but a spokesman commented:

"They're just jealous."

Mid-Atlantic League Teams in Close Race

By The Associated Press

CANTON, O., Aug. 1 — The battles for second and fourth places in the Mid-Atlantic league has reached the hands-changing stage.

A game and a half separated second-spot Erie from third-place Dayton, while fourth-place Canton has only a half-game edge on Springfield. Dayton defeated Erie 2 to 0 last night and meets the Sailors again tonight Charleston and Springfield divided a double-header, Springfield winning the first, 2 to 1, and the Senators the second 4 to 0. Zanesville defeated Canton 3 to 2.

Joe Vosmik's .331 Again High in AA Batting Averages

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Aug. 1—The American association's leading hitters reversed themselves after a week of stepped up slugging and their batting averages suffered a mild but general decline in the past week.

None lost enough points to cause a disturbance in the upper strata. In fact the first four leaders were the same as last week, with Joe Vosmik, Minneapolis outfielder, the No. 1 batter with .331, according to averages up to Thursday.

He lost three points during the week, but so did Hal Peck of Milwaukee, his nearest challenger, and the two remained two points apart.

The only gains shown among the top ten were by Milwaukee's Heinz Becker, whose 322, a boost of four points, sent him from seventh to a tie for fifth place, and by Louisville's Johnny Lazor, a newcomer in the top ten, who jumped 11 points, to land in eighth place.

The leaders:

Vosmik, .331; Peck; Joe Bestudik, Indianapolis, .328; Ed Stanky, Milwaukee, .324; Becker, .322; Al Powell, St. Paul, .322; Wayne Blackburn, Indianapolis, .328; Lazor, .315; Will Norman, Milwaukee, .314, and James Grant, St. Paul, .306.

In the departmental races, Stanky added four more doubles to his league leading total and now has 36, but he had to share the leadership in total runs scored with John McCarthy of Indianapolis, who tallied six times over the week to Stanky's five. Each had a total of 80.

Ab Wright of Minneapolis continued to lead in runs batted in with 81, but was tied for first in homers with Norman. Both had 16. Peck had the most hits, 131, and Chuck Stevens of Toledo the most triples, 11. Ed Levy of Kansas City, Bob Dillinger of Toledo and George Myatt of Columbus were deadlocked for the most stolen bases, each with 17.

The top pitcher still was Herb Karpel, with eight victories and no defeats.

WHIRLY FAVORED TO WIN ARLINGTON RACE

Ben Jones Pronounces Prize Mount Ready.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Aug. 1—This was the race in which Whirlaway expected to match noses at the finish with Alsab. But the game little Alsab was on the sidelines until Monday's opener at Washington park and today's $25,000 handicap, closing event on a 36-day program at Arlington, was between the long-tailed Whirly and "eight other horses."

A total bankroll of $31,600 was in the offing, if all nine horses start. Whirlaway's all-time earnings of $454,336 had a chance to be swelled by an additional $24,000 should Warren Wright's perennial champion come through again today.

By admission of Trainer Ben Jones, a fellow who ought to know, Whirlaway was in tip-top shape for the Arlington windup. But anxious to test this declaration were Rounders, which finished second to Whirly in the Massachusetts Handicap; Sirocco, 1940 Arlington Classic winner; Louis B. Mayer's Reading II, No Competition, Startetor, Pumpgun, Best Seller and Equitable.

HIT .361 AS ROOKIE

By International News Service

CINCINNATI—Bert Haas, Cincinnati third baseman, started out in professional baseball as a catcher with the Beatrice, Neb., team. In his first game he hit three home runs and a triple and was promptly switched to the outfield. He wound up with a .361 average for his inaugural year.

HELEN CRLENKOVICH

Pulling of four wisdom teeth has ended a feminine athletic duel possibly without parallel in American sports. The competitors were blond and beautious Marjorie Gestring of Los Angeles and equally beautiful, brown haired Helen Crlenkovich of San Francisco. The tooth-pulling job was on Marjorie. As a result, she will not compete in the national diving championships to be held at Neenah, Wis., Aug. 14-16. This leaves Helen a clear field in the spectacular three-meter event.

COLUMBUS DROPS TO FOURTH PLACE IN ASSOCIATION RACE

Lose To St. Paul, 2-1, As Mud Hens Drop Two To Millers.

By The Associated Press

At this point in the torrid American association pennant chase the four first division teams are bunched within 2½ games of each other and the only one of the foursome daring to take time out today is Minneapolis, now perched in third place.

The Millers are meeting the Great Lakes Naval Training station after whipping out a double victory over Toledo last night to move within two games of the pace-setting Kansas City Blues. The rest of the field failed to gain in yesterday's action.

While Minneapolis was stopping the Mud Hens, 5 to 2 and 5 to 4, the Blues divided a double-header with Louisville, second-place Milwaukee split a pair with Indianapolis, and Columbus lost a single encounter 2 to 1 to St. Paul to slip from third to fourth.

Kansas City racked up a 3 to 1 victory in the opener against Louisville, and lost a loose 10-to-7 decision in the nightcap.

Milwaukee lost the first game to Indianapolis, 6 to 4, but the Brewers put on some heroics to win the second, 8 to 7, scoring five runs in the final three frames.

NEYLAND SELECTS FIRST ARMY STARS

All Have Had Pro-Football Experience.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Aug. 1—Four soldiers, one a commissioned officer and all with experience in the National Football league, are the first players selected by Col. Bob Neyland, once of Tennessee, for the all-army grid machine which will participate in eight games for army emergency relief.

Colonel Neyland picked Corp. John Mellus of Villanova and the New York Giants; Lieut. Mike Gussic, West Virginia U. and the Brooklyn Dodgers; Corp. Ben Kish, Pittsburgh U. and the Dodgers; and Pvt. Michael (Mike) Masca of Villanova and the Philadelphia Eagles.

The players were instructed to report to the eastern training camp at Yale university next week in preparation for the Sept. 12 game with the New York Giants at the Polo Grounds.

A squad similar to Neyland's will train in California and will be coached by Maj. Wallace Wade, who tutored Duke's Rose Bowl team of last winter. All the players will be chosen from the 1,800 grid stars in the army, 36 of whom have had pro experience.

Johnson Entered Major Leagues 35 Years Ago

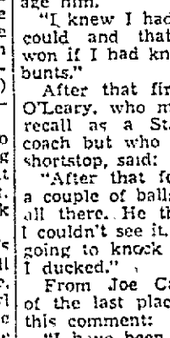
Tigers Beat "Big Train," 3 to 2, in First Big League Game Aug. 2, 1907; Later Became One of Game's Greatest Hurlers.

Wide World Features

NEW YORK—Thirty-five years ago the Detroit Tigers bunted an awkward fielding rookie pitcher to defeat his big league debut, but the fans knew a blazing new star had been born.

These hard-hitting Tigers couldn't hit this gangling recruit's speed but they stuck their bats out and got off so many bunts they finally wore out the youngster and beat Walter Johnson, 3-2.

That was August 2, 1907, the beginning of one of the greatest pitching careers in history. Every unusually-fast hurler since then has been compared to Johnson but none has measured up to the Big Train.



Walter Johnson

Chances are Walter won't know this is the anniversary of his debut — unless someone tells him. He's probably doing a full day's work on his farm down near Germantown, Md. That has been Walter's life since he quit his last baseball job, as Cleveland manager, seven years ago.

Johnson did broadcast baseball games in Washington a couple of years ago and then hopped briefly into politics. He was a Montgomery county commissioner and ran unsuccessfully for the Maryland legislature in 1940.

Had Good Fast Ball

But back to that first game. "All I had then was a fast ball, but I could fog 'em in all day. I didn't have a curve or a change of pace. They tried to get me to use a spitter but I couldn't work it.

"I was ignorant of the tricky base running, with batters and runners working signals on every pitch, and I didn't know how to keep a runner on base," he told me.

The defeat did not discourage him.

"I knew I had done the best I could and that I would have won if I had known how to field bunts."

After that first game Charley O'Leary, who most baseball fans recall as a St. Louis Browns' coach but who was then Detroit shortstop, said:

"After that fellow pitched me a couple of balls, I knew he was all there. He threw one so fast I couldn't see it. I thought it was going to knock my block off, so I ducked."

From Joe Cantillon, manager of the last place Senators, came this comment:

"I have been in baseball nearly 30 years and in all that period I never saw such a promising young pitcher. In every thing except his ability to throw and control the ball he showed his lack of baseball raising. The bunts, the fast and tricky base running, the taking chances, and the batters and runners working signals every time the ball was pitched were all new to him, but you didn't see him falling off in his throwing, did you?"

In Hall of Fame

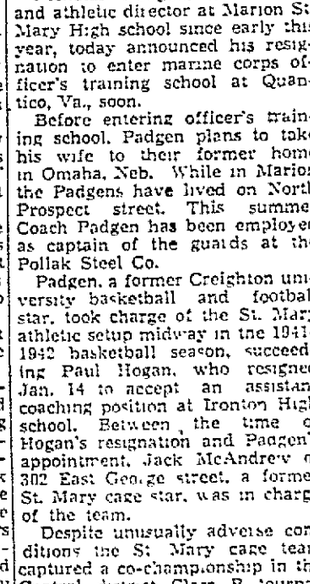
The young phenom went on to pitch more than two decades with Washington. He struck out 3,497 men, won 414 games and lost 276, headed the league in victories for six seasons, won 16 games in a row, pitched 113 shutouts, pitched 56 successive hitless innings, led the loop in strikeouts for 12 years. Had he been with a winning team his record would have been even greater.

He made the Hall of Fame on July 1, 1920 with a no-hit game against Boston. Only one man reached first on an error by Bucky Harris. Walter finally got into a World Series in the twilight of his career, in 1924 against the Giants. He lost his first two starts and then came back in the seventh game to pitch great ball and win for Washington.

He once struck out the Yankees three times in four days. Walter, unlike most pitchers, was never bothered by a sore arm. He could pitch all day, day after day, and never tire.

Baseball may never see another like him.

LEAVES ST. MARY



NICHOLAS PADGEN

IRISH HEAD COACH TO ENTER MARINES

Nicholas Padgen Resigns As Director of Athletics.

Nicholas Padgen, head coach and athletic director at Marion St. Mary High school since early this year, today announced his resignation to enter marine corps officer's training school at Quantico, Va., soon.

Before entering officer's training school, Padgen plans to take his wife to their former home in Omaha, Neb. While in Marion the Padgens have lived on North Prospect street. This summer Coach Padgen has been employed as captain of the guards at the Pollak Steel Co.

Padgen, a former Creighton university basketball and football star, took charge of the St. Mary athletic setup midway in the 1941-1942 basketball season, succeeding Paul Hogan, who resigned Jan. 14 to accept an assistant coaching position at Ironton High school. Between the time of Hogan's resignation and Padgen's appointment, Jack McAndrew of 302 East George street, a former St. Mary cage star, was in charge of the team.

Despite unusually adverse conditions the St. Mary cage team captured a co-championship in the Central district Class B tournament, but lost out in the first round of the state tourney.

In addition to starring in collegiate athletics, Padgen also spent a brief career in professional football with the Columbus Bullies of the American Professional football league. Padgen toured the nation in a series of post-season exhibition games with the Bullies in 1941.

St Mary athletic officials today were uncertain about the athletic picture for the next school year.

HIGH STEAL AVERAGE

CINCINNATI — Lonnie Frey has averaged 147 stolen bases for the nine years he has been in the major leagues. The crafty second sacker enjoyed his best pilfering season in 1940 when he swiped 22 bases.

ROBINSON PUNCHES OUT VICTORY OVER SAMMY ANGOTT

Victor Now Touted for Try at Cochrane for Welterweight Title.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Aug 1—Without taking a thing away from Sammy Angott and his "good old college try" at Ray Robinson, it occurs to Gus Fan today that it's about time Freddie-the-Red Cochrane took his welterweight championship out of cold storage so Ray could at least get a shot at it.

Ray may not be the greatest fighter ever to come down the pike, but the Harlem Hammer came from far back, after losing the first three rounds, to punch Angott around for a ten-round decision last night in the garden—in spite of the best performance Sammy ever gave in these parts. And with that victory, witnessed by 12,073, Ray has just about cleaned up the entire lightweight and welterweight divisions.

The win was his 33rd in a row as a professional, his 122nd straight in an unbeaten career including his amateur days.

He is slated to take a shot at Cochrane on Sept 10, but Freddie, now a sailor boy, will leave his welterweight title safely in port when he goes to the post.

And since Ray not only has swept up everything in sight under 147 pounds—he scaled 144½ to Sammy's 139¾ lasht night—but has done it in a manner that leaves no room for argument, you figure it's about time Cochrane put his title on the line. After all, titles are won—and lost—in the ring, and the best man is supposed to be boss.

Red won the bauble from Fritzie Zivic exactly a year ago last Wednesday. Just about all commissions—including the Scandinavian—say a champ must prove he's still the head man every six months. However, titleholders in the armed forces were given a moratorium on this.

92 Horses Are Named in Grand Circuit Finale

By The Associated Press

OLD ORCHARD BEACH, Me., Aug 1 — A blue ribbon field of harness horses compete on the Kite track here today in virtually an all-stake program winding up a two weeks' Grand Circuit meet.

The 20-event get-away card, for which 92 horses have been nominated, will include a $6,000 trotting derby, four national colt stakes, a free-for-all pace, a classified trot and a classified pace.

The card, perhaps the greatest single day's light harness racing in the sport's history in this country, is the result of accumulation of events through cancellation several times the past week because of poor weather.

That was in the begin[illegible]ng of course, but as he signifi[illegible]cantly remarked:

"There's plenty of storage room in Germany today."

The Nazi supply system has been a marvel of perfection, though it has deteriorated because of lack of gasoline for highway and air transport, and because the railroads are going to pot through want of equipment. But at the beginning of the war it was as near perfect as things come.

Ready To Build Roads

Take the case of Poland. Years before the war German engineers had figured out just where new highways would be needed for the invasion and just how much cement would be necessary to build them. As a result when Hitler flung his armies into the unhappy country, the highways followed almost as fast as the Nazi troops could move. When Hitler invaded Russia his engineers changed the wide-gauge railways there to the standard European gauge so quickly that they had the line to Smolensk—some 500 miles—altered about a month after the city was captured.

The fuehrer, of course, has pursued the scheme of living off the conquered countries so far as possible. He has bled them white, and forced countless thousands to the edge of starvation. At the same time he has moved agricultural machinery right along with his army and started intensive cultivation as soon as possible.

But efficiency can't continually pull rabbits out of an empty hat, and it can't make bread out of scorched earth such as he is encountering now. Hitler has been sowing dragon's teeth, and tomorrow armed men will spring up to [illegible] him.

NAMED DELAWARE POLICE CHIEF AT 28

Leonard Hoffman Appointed: Youngest in City's History.

Special to The Star

DELAWARE, O., Aug. 1—Twenty-eight-year-old Leonard Hoffman today became the youngest chief of police in the history of Delaware and one of the youngest chiefs in Ohio.

His appointment to the post was announced yesterday afternoon by Mayor Hosea Spaulding, following a civil service examination on July 27. His name was the only name certified to the mayor by the civil service commission as eligible for the appointment.

Chief Hoffman joined the force on Dec. 1, 1939 after serving a probationary period and has served continuously since that time. Following the resignation of Chief Earl A. Amrine on July 1, he was named night captain pending reorganization of the department.

His appointment to head the department was mandatory under Ohio civil service regulations, which provide for appointment of the candidate receiving the highest grade in the examination for the position. His grade of 74.5 per cent was the highest awarded. A grade of 70 is required to be eligible for appointment.

Two others took the examination, Robert Loader, who has been acting chief, and Patrolman Hazen Young.

In connection with the examination, prepared under the direction of the state civil service commission, members of the Delaware board announced that all papers submitted by candidates are open to public inspection, together with grades awarded by the commission.

Chief Hoffman, a graduate of Willis High school is married and has one child. He will be 29 in October.

HAWKS BEAT GALION IN BENEFIT GAME

300 See Local Team Score 3-2 Victory.

The Marion Hawks of the Ohio State semi-pro league scored a 3-2 victory over Galion in a benefit game at Lincoln park last night. Proceeds of the game were used to pay medical fees of Short-stop Fritz Walters, injured in a recent Marion-Galion league game. Last night's victory had no bearing on league standings, team officials pointed out. An estimated 300 persons saw the game.

The Hawks wasted little time in scoring. Gale Stout led off in the first inning with a sharp single and was sacrificed to second on Joe Paulus' bunt. Hilton doubled to score Stout.

The Hawks scored another run in the fourth. Hilton singled, stole second and scored on a double by Bob Dilleon.

Galion scored twice in the seventh inning. Shumaker led off with a walk and scored on Ernst's long-double. Scott singled and Ernst scored.

Fritz Walters led off with a double in the last of the seventh and scored on Darrell Roseberry's hot grounder to short. Roseberry beat out the throw to first for a clean single.

U. S. Bombers Hit Axis Supply Lines in Africa

By The Associated Press

CAIRO, Aug. 1—United States bombers caused wide damage during the week to axis supply ports in North Africa and Crete and to enemy convoys moving across the Mediterranean to the dust-stalled army of Marshal Erwin Rommel, a U. S. communique said today.

On the desert front 80 miles west of Alexandria, whirling sand storms reduced the fighting to active patroling but there were occasional artillery duels, the British announced.

The axis bombed the environs of Cairo—holy city of the Moslems and the Egyptian capital—again last night in defiance of Prime Minister Winston Churchill's standing threat to retaliate against Rome.

Five persons were killed and 12 injured. Three enemy planes were destroyed.

U.S. Car Owners Willing To Sell Government Tires If Needed, Poll Indicates

By GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

PRINCETON, N. J., Aug. 1—While there may still be confusion in the minds of the people about the rubber situation car owners throughout the country are willing to turn over tires to the government if the need arises.

This additional evidence that the people are thinking in straight lines on the business of winning the war, and are ready to make any sacrifice to that end, was brought to light by a special Institute survey of car owners, who were asked:

"If the government needs tires, would you offer to sell some of your tires to the government for a fair price?"

Dr. Gallup

Of those interviewed in the nationwide study, approximately three out of every four expressed willingness to sell one or more tires to the government.

The tabular results were as follows:

Yes	73%
No	22
Undecided	5

Reliable estimates place the number of car-owning families in the United States at 20,000,000. If 73 per cent of these were willing and able to sell only one spare tire from their cars, the government could now obtain nearly 15,000,000 tires—enough to equip more than 3,500,000 essential automobiles of one kind and another.

Farmers Less Willing

As might be expected, farmers, who face greater need for cars in their daily existence were a little more reticent about turning over their tires for government use than were car owners living in the urban areas.

Farmers

Yes	62%
No	30
Undecided	8

City-Dwellers

Yes	76%
No	19
Undecided	5

The offer from the car-owning public to help its government overcome the rubber shortage is perhaps more significant in view of an earlier survey revealing that nearly 4,500,000 families reported they would be forced to put up their cars by November because of their own critical tire needs, and that 12,000,000 families would have to do the same thing by next April.

By the same token the sooner the government acts to take over some of the privately owned tires, the greater the supply of usable tires it will find itself able to obtain.

Car owners willing to sell their tires to aid the war effort.

Baldinger Still In Spotlight in Vice Drive at Columbus

Former Marion Man To Speak To Liquor Dealers; Arrests Begun.

Lt. Col. O. M. Baldinger, former Marion man who is commandant of the Lockbourne Air base, and through whose demands Columbus is now engaged in an all-out drive to clean up vice in the city, has been invited to be one of the speakers at a meeting Tuesday night of liquor and dance-hall permit holders in Columbus and Franklin county, according to a news report today.

Squad Enlarged

Thirty-seven women and 10 men were arrested last night by the police vice squad in the biggest roundup of suspected prostitutes and associates the capital has ever seen. All were slated at city prison and "held for clinic."

The vice squad was enlarged to 17 after army officials complained that prostitutes in Columbus are spreading venereal diseases among the soldiers at an alarming rate.

Capt. Robert Wynn, chief of the squad, which is now the largest the city has ever had, said he told the members before they started out yesterday that if anyone interfered with them in "any way," to bring that person in and state him or her for "interfering with an officer." He said there are some persons "tipping off" suspects when an officer enters a place.

Most of yesterday's arrests took place after noon and Wynn said that the squad would start last night picking up women who have been identified by soldiers as being prostitutes.

The arrests came so fast during the afternoon that Wynn was rushed to make records of them and write cards to notify the clinic.

Get Workhouse Terms

Municipal Judge Fred J. Miller yesterday sentenced a 22-year-old woman to 90 days in the workhouse on a charge of engaging in prostitution and a 49-year-old man to 30 days in the workhouse on a charge of operating a house of prostitution. They were arrested Thursday.

Invitations to the meeting Tuesday night were mailed to 828 liquor and dance-hall permit holders by the secretary to Safety Director Roy Weed. The letter warned the permit holders:

"This meeting is of the utmost importance and the results therefrom might well drastically effect the future business of all permit holders."

In addition to Colonel Baldinger, invitations to speak were given Col. Frank V. Meriweather, liaison officer, Fifth Service Command, who told a conference this week that Columbus had the worst record for spread of venereal diseases in the command area; Lt. Commander Earle C. Peterson, navy delivery unit, Port Columbus; Ray Suran, FBI special agent from Cincinnati; State Liquor Director Jacob Taylor; Probate Judge C. P. McClelland and Frank Kirwin, president of the county Tavern Owners association.

Germans Declared War on Russia 28 Years Ago Today

By The Associated Press

Twenty-eight years ago today, Germany declared war on Russia and touched off the tragic sequence of events which converted the Austro-Serbian clash into a world conflict.

Two days previously, Austria had gone to war with Serbia over the dispute arising from the assassination of the Austrain Archduke, Franz Ferdinand, in Serbia on June 28, 1914.

Russia, declaring she could not remain indifferent if Serbia were invaded, mobilized troops on her eastern frontier with Austria and Germany and, with Britain and France, appealed to Germany to persuade her Austrian ally to submit the dispute to peaceful arbitration at the Hague.

Germany refused, sent an ultimatum demanding Russia demobilize, then declared war on August 1. In three succeeding days that shook the world these declarations followed:

August 3—Germany declared war on France and sent an ultimatum demanding free passage of troops through Belgium which the latter rejected.

August 4—Germany declared war on Belgium.

Britain in support of Belgian neutrality guaranty declared war on Germany.

France acknowledged state of war with Germany.

U. S. Fliers Shoot Down Nine Japanese Planes

By The Associated Press

CHUNGKING, Aug. 1—United States army pilots tore into a formation of 29 Japanese Zero planes over Hengyang airdrome yesterday and shot down nine in a fierce air battle without losing a single pilot, Lieut. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell's headquarters announced today.

A tenth Japanese plane was reported damaged and was believed to have crashed, although its destruction was not officially confirmed.

The engagement was described as the biggest aerial battle in this theater since the "Flying Tigers" of the American volunteer group were absorbed by the U. S. army air force on July 4.

It brought to 17 the number of planes lost by the Japanese in attempts to raid the Hunan province airdrome in the past two days.

PONTIAC WAR PLANT RESUMES OPERATION

Action in Food Clerks Dispute Called Treason.

By The Associated Press

PONTIAC, Mich., Aug. 1—War plants idle for hours yesterday in an AFL-CIO fight over organization of grocery clerks were humming again today after speedy peace-making by the state and federal governments.

Operations resumed with the midnight shifts at the Pontiac Motor division of General Motors Corp., and the Baldwin Rubber company, where thousands had been idle. Meanwhile, proprietors of food stores which had been forced to close reopened for business.

Settlement of the dispute, the consequences of which President C. E. Wilson of General Motors characterized as "more than a national disgrace" and an approach to "treason," was achieved yesterday afternoon.

Gov. Murray D. Van Wagoner announced the unions had agreed to cease picketing, permit delivery of foodstuffs to stores, and discontinue interference with war production.

For a week the Retail Clerks Union (AFL) had picketed independent grocery stores which had decided to contract with the United Wholesale, Retail and Department Stores Employes (CIO). AFL teamsters quit deliveries to the stores.

Retaliating, the CIO clerks obtained aid from their co-affiliates, the United Auto Workers, who picketed the war plants. Workers refused to go through the picketlines.

RUSSIA

in large numbers of troops, are striving to develop their success. Fighting frequently develops into bloody hand-to-hand engagements."

Somewhat offsetting the dark picture below Rostov, Marshal Semeon Timeshenko's armies were reported holding their own and even counter-attacking in the "battle of the bend" northwest of Stalingrad.

Destroy Nazi Headquarters

Red army headquarters said Russian armored columns destroyed the headquarters of two Nazi forces, killed at least 1,500 Germans and threw the invaders back in some sectors, and Soviet dispatches declared the Germans had suffered such enormous losses in mechanized equipment that they had been compelled to revise their offensive strategy.

Red Star, the official Soviet army newspaper, said Nazi flank attacks and the use of small tanks to protect river crossings had supplanted the erstwhile Nazi strategy of frontal assaults by massed tanks.

"The Red army has no right to retreat any longer," Red Star said.

"The people will never forgive the army for a further retreat."

Military dispatches said Russian tanks routed the 113th German infantry division and drove the Nazis back several miles in the Kletskaya sector, while more than 1,000 Nazis were listed as killed in the Tsimlyansk theater.

Despite the close threat to Stalingrad, the Russians said tanks and tractors were continuing to pour from factories in that big industrial city on the Volga, and navigation was being kept open on the river.

A Berlin broadcast said waves of Nazi warplanes attacked Red army forces "cut off from retreat across the Don" at Kalach, 60 miles west of Stalingrad, and dispersed them.

Agitate Second Front

While a brighter atmosphere prevailed in Moscow, the Soviet government newspaper Izvestia again hinted at the need for a second front, declaring:

"The main burden of the war has been borne by the Soviet Union alone for 13 months . . . the danger is greater than ever before . . . Hitler fears the day when other peoples and powers actively join the struggle."

Second-front talk lagged in London, but informed British sources declared that the appointment of an American general as commander in chief of an allied invasion force would be acceptable in Britain. Gen. George Marshall, U. S. Army Chief of Staff, has been prominently mentioned for the post of generalissimo.

Meanwhile, the German propaganda machine continued to boast of Nazi preparedness to meet an allied invasion of western Europe. The German-controlled Vichy radio said Nazi troops had conducted a "dress rehearsal" of invasion defenses on the French coast.

German circles said the test proved that German defenses of the European coast are completely in order."

Other worldwide developments:

Battle of Egypt—U. S. army tank crews were reported training only a few miles behind the Egyptian fighting front, preparing for action alongside Gen. Sir Claude J. E. Auchinleck's British Imperials.

Aside from artillery duels and patrol activities, the El Alamein front 75 miles west of Alexandria was quiet as the two armies huddled in a blinding dust storm.

Axis warplanes bombed the Cairo area last night for the second time in a week, killing five persons and injuring 12.

WALLET AND $97 GONE

George Merriam of 681 Bigelow street reported to police today that a wallet containing $97 and several personal papers was either lost or stolen from his pocket while he was attending the Keystone carnival on North Prospect street last night.

3 of Quintuplets Born in Ireland Doing Well

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Aug. 1—Three of the quintuplets born yesterday to Mrs. Thomas Leydon of Beaghlow, Ireland, were reported "doing well" today although each weighs only three pounds or less. The other two—both girls—died shortly after birth.

The Irish Red Cross sent doctors and nurses to the farmhouse where the quintuplets were born to assist the attending physician. The surviving children—two boys and a girl—will be removed to a Dublin hospital.

The Leydons have three other children.

The birth of the quintuplets was the first such authenticated event since the Dionne girls were born in Callendar, Ontario, May 28, 1931. Numerous other quintuplets have been reported but never verified.

U. S. Rubber Co., Ordnance Plant Operator, Reviews Its War Work

Now Operating Nine War Plants; All of Its Plantations In Hands of Enemy Countries.

Shipments of war products by United States Rubber Co. during the first six months of 1942 were more than three times as large as those for the corresponding period of 1941, F. B. Davis Jr., chairman and president, announced yesterday in the company's semi-annual report.

The United States Rubber Co. holds a contract with the war department to operate the Scioto Ordnance Plant, and already has the purchase of its organization at the plant site.

During the six-month period Mr. Davis said, the company was awarded government contracts to operate seven additional war plants, bringing to nine the number of war factories now under United States Rubber Co. management. Included in the new assignments were plants for the manufacture of synthetic rubber, ammunition, explosives, and the loading of shells and fuses.

Net Income

Consolidated net income before war loss provisions was $4,296,180 and after war loss provisions of $2,741,649 there was carried to earned surplus $1,554,841. This compares with $6,203,311 carried to surplus for the same period last year.

Consolidated net sales were $130,514,695, a decrease of $10,862,841, or 13% compared with the 1941 period.

Current assets, including cash of $31,472,623, totaled $157,263,091 and current liabilities, including provisions for accrued taxes, were $7,457,051.

The company, after providing $8,886,477 for federal income taxes under the 1941 law, set aside a further amount of $3,220,000 to provide for tax contingencies.

Before deduction of taxes and reserves for tax contingencies, and plantation losses, net income this year was $17,300,589, as against $14,631,311 in the same period last year.

In his statement to stockholders Mr. Davis referred to the war situation as it affects the company's plantations.

Lands In Enemy Hands

"During the early part of 1942," he said, "the remainder of the Malay Peninsula and all of Sumatra were overrun and all of our rubber plantations are now in enemy occupied territory.

"It is difficult to determine the damage which has been done to these properties or to estimate when or in what condition they will be returned to our possession.

"Subject to changes in conditions, and to review before the close of the year, it has been tentatively decided to eliminate the four plantations subsidiaries and other investments now in enemy hands as component parts of the consolidated statements, to show separately the net investment in such properties, and to provide a reserve of $3,500,000 from current earnings for the six months for estimated losses on the plantations.

"Of the $11,838,049 net investment in plantations subsidiaries, $961,108 is not in enemy occupied territory; this latter amount is represented by $2,110,008 of cash in London, less all known current plantations liabilities of $1,148,902.

"Due to conditions caused by the war and to the tentative nature of any presently determined profits . . . directors have deemed it wise to postpone action on dividends."

rifles when the time for invasion comes," but to buy and store all the firearms they could to prepare for "the day."

De Guzman, the FBI said, was associated with Leonard (Robert O.) Jordan, Harlem Negro, of the Ethiopian-Pacific league, who recently was imprisoned for not notifying the Allen registration board of an address change.

Dr. Guzman waived a hearing before a U. S. Commissioner, and was held in $10,000 bail. Assistant U. S. Attorney J. Gerand Cregan said he probably would be removed to Washington today.

Foxworth quoted the prisoner as saying that before 1938 he had organized branches of the movement in St. Louis, Indianapolis, Kansas City, Mo., Cincinnati, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia and New York, and that a Japanese army major had formed others in Cleveland, Detroit and Chicago.

DeGuzman told questioners, Foxworth related, that the major had declared "the Black Dragon society is training men and women as priests and reporters, and in the knowledge of foreign languages, for the purpose of spreading the theory of an all-powerful colored world."

LIVESTOCK IN U. S. HIGHEST ON RECORD

Set Figure at 77,000,000 for Start of 1943.

CHICAGO, Aug. 1—(Wide World)—There will be approximately 77,000,000 head of cattle on farms and ranches at the beginning of 1943, the largest number on record, the department of agriculture estimated today in its review of the agricultural situation.

This would compare with 75,000,000 head at the start of 1942. Much of the increase will be in the great central plains.

The department said the 1942 calf crop was probably the largest on record—approximately 32,000,000 head as compared with 31,000,000 head in 1941 and 30,000,000 head in 1940.

Looking at the marketing situation, the department said large numbers of cattle which ordinarily would have been bought for further feeding were going to slaughter instead. This should result in a considerable increase in slaughter this August-November as compared with last year, the department prophesied.

Livestock men said that the practice of selling cattle without additional feeding meant that the tonnage obtained from such cattle would not be as great as if they had been fed. Also, trade sources said, they would not be of prime quality.

A sustained demand from eastern shippers—the beef shortage is more pronounced along the Atlantic seaboard than elsewhere—supported the cattle market this week. Better quality offerings were most in demand, advancing about 25 cents. Medium and low grades, however, lost about an equal amount.

After breaking sharply in reaction to the lowered price the agricultural marketing administration will pay for lend-lease pork, hogs recovered somewhat later to close the week about 10 cents lower. Native and western spring lambs closed 15 to 25 cents higher.

Wool Market Interest on Upgrade in Boston

By The Associated Press

BOSTON, Aug. 1—The Commercial Bulletin said of the wool market today:

"While the volume of business done on Sumner street this week has been far from voluminous, there has been a little better interest noted late in the week and some fair sales at good prices.

"Evidently, the government will not take over the balance of the 1942 clip, although it is certain that army specifications will be sufficiently broad to require all the domestic clip to be used in military fabrics. This has been seen this week in the specification of 58s quality wools in lease-lend fabrics."

The paper quoted these Ohio prices:

Domestic fleeces—Delaine unwashed 46-49; ½ blood combing 46-48; ⅜ blood combing 49-50, ¼ blood combing 49-50.

JAP BEETLES INFEST SEVERAL OHIO AREAS

By The Associated Press

BRATENAHL, O., July 31 — Millions of Japanese saboteurs are wreaking havoc in sections of Ohio this summer, and although these enemies are beetles rather than humans their ravenous appetite is causing great concern to growers of everything from artichokes to zinias.

The center of Ohio infestation in this Cuyahoga county village, where millions of the pests are at work—170,000 were trapped last week, and entomologists estimate traps lure only one of every 10 beetles.

"This is the hottest spot in Ohio for the beetles, but an outbreak in Youngstown is worrying us," said a state entomologist. "There is another infestation at North Salem, and a few are at work in Akron, Canton, Steubenville, Marietta and Gallipolis."

The insect lays eggs in grasslands. About June 15 every year the full-grown grubs start emerging as beetles, and begin eating foliage and fruit of trees, shrubs, berry crops and vegetables.

Colorful in their armor of coppery brown and metallic green, the pests are about a third of an inch long. They turn elm leaves into lace, chew the silk off sweet corn, eat early apples down to their cores and peaches to the pit — and attack at least 200 more kinds of vegetation.

Damage in this "hot spot" was surveyed yesterday by 300 gardeners and commercial growers of northern Ohio at a meeting addressed by experts from the state agricultural experiment station. These entomologists said the principal control is the treating of grass turf with lead arsenate—10 pounds to 1,000 square feet of lawn. This destroys grubs, reducing the following year's beetle crop.

FSA SETS UP NEW FARM AID SYSTEM

Planned To Improve Service to Ohio Families.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., July 31—The farm security administration set up a newly decentralized system of assisting financially needy Ohio farmers today, to improve service to clients through emphasis on knowledge of local problems.

Instead of a general program, the FSA will work out plans which will vary according to local physical, economic and social needs, A. L. Sorensen, state director, announced.

Studies will be made of adjustments necessary to help small farmers attain economic and social security, Sorensen said, involving land use, size of farms, type of farming, tenure and leasing arrangements, farm and home practices, capital requirements, community organization, education and markets.

Announcing division of the FSA state program into three areas, Sorensen declared that "each of the areas selected is different from the others in climate, topography, crop yield, size of farms, type of farming, population and prospects.

"We have been working toward this sort of planning for seven years. The welfare of farmers depends on conditions that can be set down along area lines and we have learned that an effective farm program, designed to serve individuals can be either static or standardized."

This is the new organization plan.

Southern hill area of 27 counties with headquarters at Athens; area supervisor, Glen W. Fryor, formerly state farm home improvement supervisor; Mrs. Edna Caston, formerly district home management supervisor at Zanesville, will be area home management supervisor.

Northern-eastern area of 23 counties where dairying is important industry with area office in Mansfield; area supervisor, Lawrence Young, former state tenant purchase supervisor; Miss Mary Swint, former district home management supervisor, becomes area home management supervisor.

Central-western area of 44 counties where corn and hog raising predominates with office in Columbus, area supervisor, Henry R. Moore, former farm management specialist; area home management supervisor, Mrs. Katharine A. Cowgill, former district home management supervisor at Dayton.

The area offices will help the eight district offices map programs but the districts still will have charge of carrying them out.

Sorensen reported that the FSA had helped about 17,000 Ohio farm families improve their conditions. About 12,000 are working on farm plans now, some 2,000 have paid off loans and another 2,000 have quit the farm.

RAILS HOLDING RISING TREND

Many Industrials However, Appear To Have Run Out of Recovery Steam.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Aug. 1—Rails continued to maintain rising leadership in today's stock market while many industrials seemed to have run out of recovery steam.

Week-end hesitancy ruled at the start, bidding being restricted by two-cents of possibly depressing war bulletins over Sunday. Even those with bullish inclinations kept commitments light and a lot of pivotal issues never registered on the ticker tape. Minor fractional advances were well distributed at the close although the minus column was fairly well filled.

Transfers for the two hours were in the neighborhood of 160,000 shares.

A further drop for rail sentiment was found in the compilation of the Association of American Railroads putting net income for Class I lines for the first six months, after interest and rentals, at about $269,000,000 against $169,998,733 in the same 1941 stretch.

Steels settled down to a do-nothing position. Bethlehem managed to tack on a modest fraction on a few transactions after yesterday's sprint attributed to the regular dividend declaration and better than expected profits statement. U. S. Steel opened up ¼ after a delay of one hour and 25 minutes. It was predicted mill operations in the Chicago and Pittsburgh districts would recede next week.

Atlantic Coast Line touched a new 1942 peak in front the greater part of the time were Santa Fe, Union Pacific, N. Y. Central, Great Northern, Pennsylvania, Baltimore & Ohio, Goodrich, Chrysler, American Telephone, United Aircraft, Paramount, National Distillers, Philip Morris, Sehenley and American Can.

'Colonel Britton' To Be On Sunday Radio Program

Britain's mysterious "Colonel Britton," whose broadcasts from London to the continent are credited with starting the "V for Victory" campaign, is scheduled for We the People's program on CBS at 7 p. m. tomorrow. He will speak in a short wave pick-up according to The Associated Press.

plans. They alone can judge whether the additional air power would be worth having at the expense of other forms of military power.

This question cannot be settled by the newspapers. It cannot be settled by the Truman committee, though that committee is well equipped to elucidate the broad issue. It cannot be settled by Mr. Donald Nelson, and it cannot be settled by the joint army-navy munitions board. They can only define in detail the choices that would have to be made. Only the high command can make the choices and settle the question. For the question is what kinds of weapons and equipment we need the most urgently to fight the kind of war they mean to fight.

In making their final decision the high command can, on the basis of past experience, afford to discount somewhat the estimates of the sacrifices which such a program would require. There are some very human factors in those estimates; each branch of each service, inspired by the desire to make a fine record, tends to insure itself by exaggerating the things it cannot do without and by making it appear that the things it would have to give up are the most indispensable things.

Funeral Services Held for Drowning Victim

DELAWARE, Aug. 1—Funeral service was conducted here this afternoon for Glenn Russell Hensley, 28, of Delaware who drowned Thursday in the "middle" C. & O. quarry while searching for a lost fishing plug.

Delaware county's first 1942 drowning victim, he had lost the plunger-type "jitterbug" plug several days previously when his line broke and a large bass got away. Thursday he swam to the spot where the plug had been lost and began diving for it.

City firemen succeeded in finding the body when two high school youths reported that his clothes had been found but that he was not in sight. Artificial respiration and resuscitator efforts at Jane Case hospital failed to revive him.

Surviving are the parents, Mr. and Mrs. James E. Hensley, two brothers and three sisters.

YOUR HEALTH

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Health Guardian

I have just attended the 150th anniversary of the founding of the Connecticut State Medical society, the oldest organization of its kind which has a record of regular annual meetings since its establishment. In that 150 years the organized medical profession has done more than any other group to guide the state towards better health.

It is interesting and valuable to note the activities which this group has found during all the years of existence to be primary requisites to health—and those over which they believe the state should preside.

Better Pre-Natal Care

First, it is to see that the babies born in the state are healthy. Primarily it is necessary to see that they are born alive. In Connecticut more babies survive births than in any other place in the world. During the past 14 years 50 per cent more babies have been saved, and this saving is accredited to better pre-natal care for all mothers, rich, poor and in the middle brackets.

After the child is born the care and especially the diet of the infant should be supervised. The baby's weight should be noted regularly as an index to its normal growth. Children in Connecticut are all required to be vaccinated against smallpox and diphtheria before entering school. (Of course, at an earlier age is really best but at least the state can require parents to have their children vaccinated before entering school.)

Mothers and fathers do not wait until the baby is sick before calling a doctor. There are clinics for regular examinations to ward off sickness. Especially emphasized are dental clinics. It has been found that dental decay can start as early as two years.

One child out of every four has some kind of eye trouble and attention to this makes for better scholarship in school.

State sanitaria for tuberculosis are considered a duty of the commonwealth. Connecticut is one of the few states that have enough beds to take care of all their tuberculosis citizens.

Food Inspections

Inspection of dairy plants and food handlers insures a pure supply of milk and meat, also vegetables free from contamination. More than 300,000 laboratory tests of food and of taverns, grocery stores, restaurants and farms are made annually at the state laboratory—an examination every minute and a half.

Hospitals for the mentally afflicted were established early in Connecticut.

Industrial plants are all required to have examinations of their workers made regularly, an especially thorough one being made before employment. First aid and protection for those who labor is a prime necessity.

All persons applying for a license for marriage are examined before the license is issued.

The British Board of Trade has prohibited display of photographs in connection with the display, renting or exhibition of motion picture films to conserve supplies of sensitized photographic materials.

Pitfalls of Love

By ADELE GARRISON

"YES, MOTHER," I said cordially, but with a cautious backward glance at my mother-in-law for any sign of sympathy.

"I want to ask Mr. Merriwell, I was under orders that my mother and my sister-in-law were to receive equal care."

My mother-in-law's sandy eyebrows lifted. I saw that my every word and movement would be under critical scrutiny.

"Mother, darling," I said meekly, "Don't answer me if I am wrong, but there's something I can't quite understand. We're very much afraid that Mr. Merriwell has developed a mild case of appendicitis and we're all anxious for him to have the best care possible. I wish you would keep Lillian with you in the children as much of the time as possible and almost her anything she wishes to do. As soon as I know anything definite I will write you."

Mother Graham Appeased

I had struck the right note.

"Of course, my dear girl," she said. "I understand, and I will do everything you wish. Also, please forget what I said just now. Ah, Lillian, Margaret wants to talk to you."

Lillian's voice was almost a gasp.

"Madge! Has anything happened?"

"No, no," I told her emphatically, thankful that she had not overheard the theatrical falsehood with which I had just won my mother-in-law back to tractable benevolence.

"Oh, thank God!" she said. Then she asked mechanically, "What can I do for you?"

I told her my errand quickly in "camouflaged conversation," and assured her that Katharine would have a telephone number by which to reach me, should she need to call me when I was out.

Then I said good-bye to Junior and Faith, to whom I always give the last word, and hung up the receiver to face Mary.

"Is that true," she said, "what you said to Grandma Graham? Do you know anything about Marion you haven't told me?"

"I give you my word," I said, "that there is nothing new concerning Marion. Your grandmother was on the warpath, about Aunt Lillian, I think. It was necessary to do something drastic immediately."

She breathed a deep sigh of relief, then her lips quirked into an irrepressible grin.

Agrees To Go to Restaurant

"Don't write to her too soon, unless you have another mustard plaster ready," she advised. Then she threw her arms around me exuberantly.

"I take it you are going with us," she said. "Ain't so?"

"Yes, I'll go," I told her. "What time shall I be ready, and where shall I meet you," she said.

"About 5:30, and we'll come here after you," she said.

"I can't leave here unless Katharine is back," I warned her, "but I'm sure she will be."

The Stars Say—

For Sunday, August 2

SUNDAY'S horoscope holds auguries for very favorable and pleasant activities suitable to the relaxation, enjoyment and sociability of the holiday. The spiritual and intellectual faculties are under impetus to accomplishments of a high order in Sabbath meditation, inciting to writings, preaching and profound teachings.

Those whose birthday it is may have an enjoyable and profitable year, with the intellectual and social talents under excellent stimulus for doing successful work in either direction. Writings, particularly of a serious or serviceable quality, art, music, not forgetting business publicity or newspaper work, are bound to be lucrative.

A child born on this day should have much versatility, with its pen and in speech, inclining to writings of wide diversity, being idealistic and optimistic as well as serious minded.

For Monday, August 3

MONDAY'S astrological augury is a rather conflicting one, with much of promise of achievement in launching major activities under high tempo, but with lack of support or approbation from superiors, employers or the public.

Those whose birthday it is, although they might encounter opposition and total lack of cooperation from superiors and the public or community, may by force of indomitable will, skill, ingenuity, originality, perseverance and patience succeed in putting over projects of very high order. There may be much nervous strain and emotional upset, but there may be social, domestic and affectional satisfactions.

A child born on this day should have excellent constructive ability, energy, ingenuity and skill.
